Leaders at Conference of Independence League

Thomas L. Hisgen, candidate for League nomination for Governor of Massachusetts.

INDEPENDENCE LEAGUERS IN CONVENTION

'MUST BE NEW PARTY'—HISGEN

Massachusetts Man Prominent at Great Gathering of Leaders in New Movement at New York Says Organization Needed to Protect Rights of People —Conference to Put Organization on National Basis.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—Thomas L. Hisgen, prominent candidate for the Independence League nomination for Governor of Massachusetts, and E. Gerry Brown, whose great vote for Lieutenant-Governor last year attracted the attention of politicians in all the Eastern States, are leading figures at the Independence League meeting at Carnegie Hall to-day.

The meeting was called to consider the feasibility of extending the organization of the league to all States in the Union. Delegates from all parts of the country are in attendance, and the early hours of the session developed enthusiasm on every side.

Mr. Hisgen, who was constantly the centre of a group of Leaguers interested in his campaign for the nomination for Governor, is one of the most energetic delegates. In a talk to-day he declared: "There is need for a national third party. In my trips through Massachusetts I have a decidedly strong sentiment in favor of the principles of the Independence League. It is a healthy sentiment and one that is bound to grow. I believe that the Independence League can be carried into every State in the Union and developed as it has here in New York and in my own State."

The Gilsey House, last night, was thronged with many distinguished men, who had traveled from so far West as California, as far East as Maine, as far North as North Dakota and as far South as Texas, to make sure of participating in what they believed will prove an epoch-making event in the country's political history. Illinois sent a delegation headed by Chairman J. G. Gray of the Independence League State Committee. From California came President J. J. Dwyer of the San Francisco League, a man who has been most active in the prosecution of the Pacific slope grafters. With him were Edward Rainey and other prominent Californians. John Garry East headed the Texas delegation.

Delegations From West and South

In the multitude that congregated at the Gilsey House also were delegations from Iowa, headed by Mayor James Haverton of Mount Pleasant; from Pennsylvania, led by Frank C. Harper of Pittsburg; from Missouri, led by Charles Ferguson and E. P. Walsh.

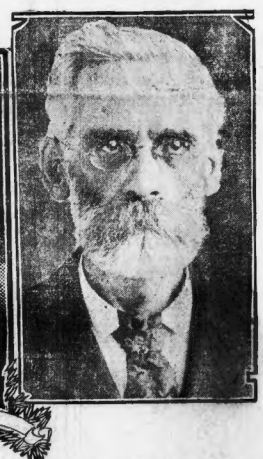
The Indiana delegation was headed by O. P. Eversole of Fort Wayne; the Kansas by J. J. Shepard of Fort Scott; the men from Massachusetts have as spokesman Thomas L. Hisgen of Springfield, who is talked of for the Independence League nomination for Governor, and W. N. Osgood of Boston.

Virginia sent, among others, Charles G. Kiser of Norfolk; West Virginia, L. R. Vis of Parkersburg; Connecticut, Robert Byne of Hartford; New Jersey, Joseph R. Buchanan and Captain John A. Smith; Michigan, Charles S. Hampton of Detroit, while New York, in addition to its metropolitan leaders, will be represented at the conference by Reuben Roble Lyon of Bath, George C. Hisgen of Albany, Cornelius L. Haley of Utica, George H. Sears of Syracuse, and others.

To-day delegations from Alabama, Arkansas, South Dakota, Georgia, Kentucky, Ohio, North Carolina, Maryland and Mississippi are expected.

William N. Osgood, pioneer in League movement in Massachusetts.

Clarence J. Shearn, prominent New York lawyer.



E. Gerry Brown, who polled great vote in Massachusetts last year.

STEEL KING'S WIFE IN GILDED PRISON?

MABELLE GILMAN'S FATHER MAKES ACCUSATION AGAINST COREY.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—Charles Henry Gilman, father of Mrs. William E. Corey, wife of the president of the billion-dollar steel trust and formerly the actress Mabelle Gilman, will make another effort to see his daughter to-day, after having been turned coldly from the millionaire's mansion, at No. 802 Fifth avenue, last night.

In a sensational statement Mr. Gilman charges that Mr. Corey is holding his young wife a prisoner, so as to prevent her from communicating with her father.

Receives Attorney's Call.

Mr. Corey's personal attorney called on Mr. Gilman at the Astor House and informed him, he said, that his daughter had repudiated him and did not wish to see or speak with him. The aggrieved father does not believe that his daughter would willingly disown him, and his reception at her fine new house only strengthened that belief.

With the repudiation of her father, Mrs. Mabelle Gilman Corey also disowns her two young sisters, Pearl, eighteen years old, and Eunice, seventeen.

The father denies that there is revenge in his intention to bring the pretty sisters to New York immediately and put them on the stage here—to follow in the footsteps of Mabelle. The appearance of the Gilman sisters on the New York stage and billed as the sisters of Mrs. William E. Corey would be particularly distasteful to Mr. Corey and that fact was mentioned by his attorney to Gilman.

Has New Song Written.

"But pearl and Eunice are good actresses," said their father to-day, "and there is no reason why they should not appear in New York, which is the natural ambition of all stage people. In fact, I think they are better than Mabelle was, and I am going to let the public judge for itself. They have been making tremendous hits on Western vaudeville circuits, and I believe a triumph awaits them here. Pearl is an excellent singer, and I am having a song written for her, the first line of which will be something like this: 'For her sister passed her by and didn't speak.'

"Eunice plays boy parts and does some wonderful imitations of Mabelle. Both of them will make an impression in New York."

Mr. Gilman arrived in New York last Sunday, and since then has been trying to get in communication with Mrs. Corey. Each day he has sent notes. All have been unanswered except the one on Monday, and to that he received an unsigned note, in his daughter's handwriting, saying that her attorney would call on him Tuesday.

BOSTON SHIP AND GUNBOAT IN COLLISION

The United States gunboat Prarie was in collision early to-day with the fishing schooner Flora E. Nickerson of this port off Cape Cod. The fishing schooner was raked from stem to stern, both her masts going by the board.

The gunboat sent a wireless dispatch to the Charlestown navy yard that she had started for this port towing the fishing schooner. She was sighted passing Highland Light at 9:30 a. m., and reached Boston about 2 o'clock. The wireless dispatch said that none of the crew of the fishing schooner was injured.

The Nickerson, with a crew of eighteen men, left this port for the fishing grounds last night. With a fair breeze she was passing the Cape early to-day when she was struck by the gunboat, which was northbound.

The schooner was bound for the Georges banks. It is reported that most of the crew of the fisherman were below asleep when the collision came. They rushed on deck to find but a mass of wreckage, the heavy spars hanging over the sides, and with some of the members of the crew struggling in the water.

Boats were launched from the gunboat and the work of rescue was begun at once. It was feared that she would sink at any moment. The crew was taken into lifeboats manned by the gunboat's crew, and then it was found that the hull of the schooner was but slightly damaged and that she was not leaking badly.

BAY STATE LEAGUE IS WELL REPRESENTED AT NEW YORK GATHERING

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—The Massachusetts Idependence League was well represented at the Gilsey House last night at the meeting of delegates to the national conference that is to be held to-day. The headquarters and

HARRIS JURY VISITS SCENE OF SHOOTING

After having visited to-day the vicinity of A and Binford street, South Boston, where, on the afternoon of April 24, Michael J. Cunningham, a young teamster, received a bullet wound which caused his death at the City Hospital five days later, the jury which is trying Lewis Harris of New York, charge with the murder, returned to the court house and the presentation of the government's case was begun by Assistant District Attorney Felix J. Meiertrick. Fifteen witnesses were summoned for the government.

The jury met in the South station at 9 o'clock in charge of Court Officers Thomas Murray and William Meberitt and Officer McIlvray of Station 6. Attorney J. J. Feeley, for Harris and Assistant District Attorney Meiertrick accompanied the party over Summer street to the South Boston end of the bridge, where they stopped and the attorneys explained to the jurymen the conditions in South Boston during the recent teamsters' strike.

Shows Where Men Stood.

Then the party walked through Melcher street to A street, where they stopped again, and the attorneys gave further explanations. In front of the Boston Plate and Window Glass Company at No. 261 A street, where the shooting occurred, the jury was halted again.

Here Assistant District Attorney Meiertrick pointed out to the jurymen where Harris and Cunningham stood when the fatal shot was fired.

Mr. Meiertrick carried a large map of that section of South Boston, showing the Boston Plate and Window Glass Companys place and the streets.

The party returned to the South Station where the attorneys took a cab and were driven to Mr. Feeley's office. Here he got out and running into his office procured a bundle of papers. Then they were driven to the court house whither the jury was proceeding afoot at the same time.

Mrs. Cunningham Witness.

Mrs. Cunningham, mother of the dead boy, was one of the witnesses sworn. She was dressed in deep mourning. On the motion of Attorney Feeley all witnesses were excluded from the courtroom save Captain Dunan and Medical Examiner William C. Macdonald.

In his address to the jury Mr. Meiertrick said that the government expected to show that Cunningham was walking away from the defendant when the shots and that when the dead youth was twenty to thirty feet away from the defendant Harris drew a revolver and fired two shots, one of which took effect in Cunningham's back.

Dr. Macdonald was the first witness called. He gave a technical description of the wounds which he found on Cunningham's body at the autopsy conducted at the City Hospital. A bullet wound through the intestines caused death, Dr. Macdonald said.

Dr. Robert Ehrenfield, house surgeon at the City Hospital, who was on duty when Cunningham was brought in, said the injured young man was excited, hysterical and afraid of the result of his wound.

2 MEN TWICE SAVED FROM DEATH IN SEA

Fishermen Rescued After Three Days in Open Boat Meet Shipwreck.

BEACHED ON CAPE COD

Tossed at the mercy of a rough sea for three days and two nights in a rocky shell of a boat, with no water or food, to be saved when hope was almost gone, only to go through another shipwreck and again face death until the rescuing vessel was beached on Cape Cod, was the thrilling story that Fred Decker of Rockport, N. S., and John Williams of Canso, N. S., two young Gloucester fishermen, to-day related to their friends in Boston and Gloucester, having arrived here last night from Cape Cod, where they finally got safely to land.

On the day after they sailed from Gloucester, eight days ago, they became lost in the dory while engaged in placing trawls, in company with three other boats, by the setting in of a fog, while off Cape Cod, about sixty-eight miles southeast of Highland Light.

Decker and Williams parted company with the other boats and attempted to reach land with the aid of their dory and the fit of a sail the dory carried. They were picked up Sunday after Martinmas Island, off the Maine coast by the three-masted schooner Edward R. Baird, jr., from Sullivan to New York, after having suffered terribly from hunger, thirst and exposure.

LEAVES CHAUFFEUR BEHIND; COSTS $100

SALEM, Sept. 27.—For the sport of the thing George C. Cannon of Newtonville left the chauffeur of his rented automobile at Fenerofft Inn, Middleton, Sunday, and drove the car away with a party of friends. The chauffeur reported to the police that the car was stolen. Cannon was arraigned in District Court to-day, accused of operating an automobile without a license. His lawyer explained that the case had already cost him $100, part of which went to the automobile owner for not pressing the more serious complaint. The case was therefore dropped.

INDEPENDENCE LEAGUE LEADERS OF THE NATION IN NEW YORK CONVENTION

DELEGATES FROM ALL OVER THE COUNTRY GATHER FOR IMPORTANT MEETING.

the corridors of the hotel were thronged with representatives of the League from many States.

To-day, means will be devised to harmonize the action of the various branches of the Independence League of the various States and to unite that action into a national movement for the advancement of Independence League principles, in the largest and most effective manner.

This conference is called as the result of a desire generally expressed throughout the country to the New York League that it take the initiative in organizing into a militant force the believers in the League principles everywhere.

Men prominent in national political affairs were present at the ante-conference gathering. One of the most conspicuous figures in the hotel was Charles J. Walsh of Iowa, formerly secretary of the Democratic committee and now one of the most earnest promoters of the national Independence League movement.

Hearty Greeting for Hisgen

No one was accorded a heartier greeting than Thomas L. Hisgen of West Springfield, Mass., the most prominent candidate for the Independence League nomination for Governor of the old Bay State. He was the centre of attraction in the committee rooms and was introduced and greeted as one of the most popular factors of the new party.

E. Gerry Brown of Brockton, Mass., was congratulated by many of the leaders for the magnificent run he made last year as the candidate of the Independence League for Lieutenant-Governor of Massachusetts, and hailed as one of the sturdiest pioneers in the league party movement. Mr. Brown was encouraged to continue the good work which he so magnificently inaugurated last year in his State.

Among the other prominent leaders from Massachusetts were John L. Eddy, chairman of the State Committee; Hon. William N. Osgood of Lowell, Grenville S. MacFarland of Cambridge, chairman of the Executive Committee of the Massachusetts State Committee; Junius T. Auerbach of Boston, Dennis J. Ring of Lowell, Charles E. Buttworth of Somerville and Charles O. Power, executive secretary of the State Committee.

That the fight which Mr. Hisgen is making in behalf of the League in Massachusetts has attracted country-wide attention was evidenced by the remarks which were made by those to whom he was introduced to-night.

Delegates to the conference from California, from Iowa, from New York, from Illinois, from Rhode Island, from Maine, from the South, all told him that they had heard of the gallant fight which he had made against the Standard Oil Company, and of the bold and honest demand he had expressed for the opportunity to lead the fight of the Massachusetts Leaguers on a platform antagonistic to Standard Oil and railroad monopoly.

Promise Hot Campaign in Bay State

From the statements made by the delegates from various parts of the country it was evident that the campaign in Massachusetts this year is going to be closely watched, and on the showing made by the various candidates a great deal is going to depend. Reports made by the Massachusetts members of the conference are to the effect that the campaign this year in that State will be the hottest that has been waged in a long time.

Mr. Hisgen says that he has just finished a two weeks' tour of the western part of the State, visiting the smaller towns and villages, places that are generally neglected by political campaigners, and he is greatly encouraged by the assurances he has received. He says he has met on an average about 300 people a day. The men he has seen comprise the farmers, the small storekeepers and mill operatives. He has talked in the fields, at the mill gates and in the stores during the day time, and has held receptions at hotels in the evening, besides visiting many homes and interesting the women in his canvass. Last night he delighted his listeners with stories of the incidents that had happened during this most unique style of campaigning.

TRAINS CRASH IN VERMONT; SEVERAL HURT

Engineer's Presence of Mind Averts Terrible Disaster Near Brattleboro.

LOCOMOTIVES WRECKED

BRATTLEBORO, Vt., Sept. 27.—Following the terrible blunder at West Canaan, N. H., which only a few days ago cost the lives of twenty-five persons, another collision of Central Vermont passenger trains operated under Boston & Maine orders, occurred three miles south of here last night, which is laid to the same cause—an error in the transmission of train orders.

Both locomotives were smashed, the coaches wrecked, and many were injured, though none fatally.

The crash, which occurred near Vernon, was between a train carrying over 400 people returning from the Valley Fair held here and a special, consisting of an engine and three cars. That hundreds were not killed or wounded is considered remarkable.

The alert engineer of the South-bound fair train luckily saw the special bearing down on his precious load of human freight and was able to reverse his engine and apply the emergency brakes, which quick action alone saved a fearful tragedy. Had the crash occurred on a curve instead of on a straight stretch of track, the horror would probably have been as great as that at West Canaan.

As the engineer saw death staring him in the face and checked the speed of his train, he warned his fireman to jump for his life. When he had done all he could for the hundreds in peril behind he leaped too. The crew of the special engine also jumped, and the four men all escaped without serious injuries.

TRY TO PROVE BORAH FRAUD IN LAND DEALS

BOISE, Idaho, Sept. 27.—Government counsel in Senator William E. Borah's trial for alleged complicity in the Idaho land frauds sought to introduce in evidence to-day a copy of a contract the charge was entered into between former Governor Frank Steunenberg and William Sweet in February, 1902, to acquire Boise Valley lands. The prosecution plans to follow this instrument, with a $47,000 joint note on a local bank executed by Sweet and Steunenberg. It is the government's intention to attempt to show there that the lands in question were acquired by fraudulent means.

Senator Addison Foster of Washington has arrived with A. B. Campbell, the Spokane millionaire, to be called late to-day to tell of Steunenberg's endeavor to interest him in the land projects. Campbell, it is said, was introduced by Governor Albert Palmer, who gave him a letter to Barber and Moon, named as co-defendants.

This is the prosecution's first attempt to prove Steunenberg's connection with the alleged frauds, and is strongly opposed by the defence as Borah is fighting to clear his friend Steunenberg's name as well as his own.

District Attorney Reick was called before the special grand jury yesterday to explain his conduct at the investigation before the Borah grand jury.

FATHER WILLS $10,000,000 TO MRS. ISELIN

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 27.—Under the will of her father, Colonel William Goddard, filed in the town of Warwick to-day, Mrs. C. Oliver Iselin of New York becomes at once a very wealthy woman. Eventually, and also under this instrument, she will receive practically the whole of her father's estate, a total of from $25,000,000 to $30,000,000. The present bestowal of the will is an interest in the estate amounting to about $10,000,000.

Mrs. Iselin was Miss Hope Goddard of this city. She is Mr. Iselin's second wife. She has two small children, a son and a daughter.

Mrs. Iselin is one of the most beautiful women in society, and is also a noted athlete, excelling in golf, tennis, horseback, yachting and boxing. Her husband is famous as a builder of racing yachts, owning the speedy cup defender Vigilant, and managing that boat, the defender, Reliance and Columbia in the several contests for the America's cup.

Mrs. Iselin was a celebrated belle before her marriage. It is said that the present Prince of Wales, when he was Prince George and a lieutenant in the British navy, paid ardent attentions to her at Bermuda, where she was wintering.

TWENTY HURT IN FIVE TROLLEY CAR CRASHES

PASSENGERS HURLED FROM SIGHTSEEING AUTO IN HUNTINGTON AVENUE.

To-day over a dozen persons are suffering from injuries received in three collisions on the Boston Elevated road's system, between cars and other vehicles. The most serious was that between a Brookline car and a big sight-seeing automobile at the corner of Huntington avenue and Bryant street, near the baseball grounds, last night. In this accident ten were hurt, when the twenty-five members of the party who were being Boston, were hurled in all directions in the nine-seated conveyance, and several were plunged to the stone pavements of the street.

Following the crash of the vehicles, which was heard for blocks about, a panic ensued among the women on the auto, many of whom fainted. Paul Tischler of Dedham, Mass., and E. A. Lawrence of Boston, guide, were thrown into the street, while Mrs. Letta Fitzpatrick of No. 5 Alston street, Boston; Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Hinde of Oak Park, Ill., and Mrs. M. E. Whitney of Kenwood, N. Y., were pinned beneath the overturned wood of the broken front seats. Mr. Hinds had a leg broken and the women were badly bruised.

Others injured in the crash were: Mrs. E. S. Norton, Kenwood, N. Y.; Mr. J. W. Bradway, Mrs. E. A. Walsh, Albany, N. Y.; R. B. McDougal, Peoria, Ill.; Mrs. H. T. Loveland, Miss F. M. Bartown, Syracuse.

The auto is owned by Mrs. Ida Ratchdee of Boston, who sets her loss at Rob Woman of $500 in Collision.

Later in the evening, as Mrs. Bessie Miller, daughter of "Poco" Bennett, the well known Harvard old clothes man, was entertaining a party of friends with a drive along Columbus avenue, behind a pair of splendid bay horses, her carriage came into collision with a car at the corner of Northampton street, and before the coachman could get the spirited animals under control, some thief in the crowd had snatched the purse of Mrs. Miller, containing $500 in money, diamonds and jewelry, from the ground, where she had dropped it when the shock came. The carriage party reported to the police that a young well dressed man had been seen to grab the pocketbook.

Dashing down a steep hill in Hancock street, West End, the horse attached to a furniture wagon of Methuen Stone, No. 6 Auburn street, crashed into a Belt Line car, sending his head through a window and the shafts through a side of the car. Thomas E. Lonian, of No. 19 East Springfield street, was slightly injured.

Cars Crash Head-on.

In a head-on collision between two Boston & Northern street cars near Lake Shore Park on the Peabody line last night, a number of passengers were thrown from their seats and several are said to have been cut by flying glass, some of the panes in the cars being shattered. The collision occurred on a curve and the motormen, by vigorous application of the brakes, saved a much more serious accident.

ROCKVILLE, Ct., Sept. 27.—When the controller of a Hartford car blew out last night the vehicle came to such a sudden stop on the West street corner curve that a dozen passengers were thrown off, several stunned, and seven were injured.

APPROVE GAS TRUST PLANS

The Gas Commissioners have approved the laying of the pipe line through the streets of Chelsea by the Boston Consolidated Gas Company, the line to extend from the northerly terminus of Williams street through public streets and private rights of way to the Chelsea bridge, between Chelsea and East Boston.

The company desired such location for the purpose of connecting its works in Everett with works of the East Boston Gas Company. The Chelsea Board of Aldermen refused to grant the right, whereupon the company appealed to the Gas Commission.

The Board of Alderman declared before they granted a permit the price of gas must be reduced to eighty cents. The commission rules that ample jurisdiction is vested in the Gas Commission upon complaint of twenty customers of Chelsea to order such reduction.

MORAN OPENS GRAND JURY COAL PROBE

Many Summoned to Tell What They Know About City Contracts.

POLITICIANS ARE ALARMED

District Attorney John B. Moran to-day began with the Grand Jury an investigation of certain coal contracts between the city of Boston and a number of dealers. The investigation is the result of the testimony taken by the Finance Commission.

At 11:20 Mr. Moran went into the Grand Jury room to talk to the indicting body. While he was here the men summoned were in the corridor awaiting to be called. There were half a dozen or more of them.

The summonses issued read in part: "Commonwealth vs. John Jones et al." It is believed at City Hall and the Courthouse that "et al." has a world of meaning in this case.

District Attorney Moran states that he is working in harmony with the Finance Commission in his proceeding. What fact he is presenting are the subject of grave conjecture by men in the coal trade and many politicians. When Mr. Moran sat on Saturday last that he did not want to be nominated by any political party for another term, he spoke of City Hall as a nest of corruption and intimated that when the Finance Commission got through some politicians might go to prison.

At the court house to-day there was intense interest taken in the coal probing. It was wondered if the facts to be given to the Grand Jury to-day are more incriminating than anything made public regarding Finance Commission disclosures.

Among the witnesses summoned to appear at the court house to-day were Roy Gillispie, agent for the Georges Creek Coal Company; John Tucker, agent for another coal concern; J. J. McCarthy, a coal expert sent to Pennsylvania by the Finance Commission to gather facts; Joseph Lowe, chief clerk of the ferry department.

HARRIMAN INDICTED IN NEW RATE LAW PPOBE

ONE HUNDRED AND FORTY COUNTS EMBRACED IN BILL—MANAGER ALSO HELD.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 27.—E. H. Harriman, head of the Union Pacific Railroad system and the foe of Stuyvesant Fish of New York, has been indicted by the Federal Grand Jury for rate discrimination.

The charges grow out of his manipulation of the Pacific Mail Steamship Line.

With him is indicted R. P. Schwerin, his general manager of the steamship company.

This sensational action on the part of the Grand Jury, by and through which the Interstate Commerce Commissioners and other Washington authorities are to bring some very prominent steamship and railroad men into the federal courts on criminal charges for having violated the new the year.

rate law, is being surrounded with much secrecy.

It has caused a big surprise in local Federal circles, and has been done so quickly and so secretly as to astonish the railroad and steamship people.

The indictments embrace one hundred and forty counts and relate particularly to violations of the law on shipments from the Orient through the port of San Francisco to Chicago.

The particular instance in which the law is said to have been violated relates to shipments of matting from Kobe to Chicago, these shipments being very heavy and numerous during quite a number of months of

CARNEGIE GIFT AGAIN HELD UP

Andrew Carnegie's offer of a $25,000 library has again been held up by the Somerville Board of Aldermen. The issue of accepting has been before the board since last April in one form or another, but each time action was put over. The principal delay in accepting the gift is the cost of maintenance, which it is claimed would be over $7,000 annually.

BANQUET ENDS BIG CONGRESS

A banquet last night at Hotel Somerset closed the week's sessions of the International Congress of Religious Liberals. Five hundred foreign guests enjoyed witty speeches and mingled in a scene of gayety which was enlivened by gay costumes of Orientals and costly dresses of American women of scholarly attainments and earnest convictions from all parts of the world. The affair was given by the Unitarian Club of Boston.

3 MEN KILLED BY FRIGHTFUL OIL EXPLOSION

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—Three men were killed and three injured, one probably fatally, windows in houses and trolley cars were shattered, and the residents for several miles around panic-stricken by the explosion of a tank of 20,000 gallons of crude oil on Protectory avenue, near Winchester road, Unionport, early to-day.

The dead:

Cooper, James, twenty-six years old, of Middletown road, Unionport.

Smith, Richard, of Vanness, son of Policeman Smith of the Bronx station.

Riley, John, address not known, body not recovered.

The injured:

Johnston, Allan, twenty-six years old, of Unionport, volunteer fireman burned about head, body and arms, probably fatally.

Jordan, Arthur, mounted policeman, burned about arms and hands trying to rescue Cooper.

Conway, James, burned about hands and arms while trying to aid Cooper.

The men who met death were pumping oil from the tank with which to oil the Morris Park track for the auto races. The tank is owned by the Bronx Gas & Electric Company, and the oil came from the pipeline of the New Haven railroad.

Without an instant of warning there was a terrific report, a column of flame shot hundreds of feet in the air and the huge top of the tank was hurled a thousand feet, falling in the woods.

FAMOUS FIGHTER IS WED AT CATHEDRAL

Last night, in the Cathedral of the Holy Cross, "Steve" O'Donnell, the famous fighter and trainer and instructor of boxing at Harvard, was united in marriage to Miss Mary A. Phlan, a well-known Boston young woman, and the couple left on a midnight train for an extended honeymoon. They will return to Boston in November.

35 IN PANIC DURING FIRE IN TENEMENT

An early morning fire in the three-story brick tenement house at No. 283 Causeway, corner of Endicott street, to-day, caused a panic among half a dozen Italian families and thirty-five men, women and children, dressed only in their night clothing, were driven from their beds into the chilly morning air. When the fire was discovered the occupants of the building made a mad scramble to escape smoke and flames, and after reaching the open air failed to become calm for some time. The fire was discovered in a lavatory on the second floor and soon ate its way into the tenement of Peter Muscali, who, with his family, was the first to leave the building. He alarmed the other tenants.

The fire was probably due to the carelessness of a smoker, the firemen believing some person threw a match or lighted cigarette on the floor. The damage was about $1,500. The building is owned by John Doherty.

LIFESAVERS HELP AN UNKNOWN YACHT

CHATHAM, Sept. 27.—The Monomoy lifesaving crew in response to signals of distress from a strange yacht, a short distance off shore, assisted the crew in getting up her head sails and started her over the shoals westward. All hands on board were pumping and bailing as she sailed away.

MAN KILLED BY TRAIN.

MIDDLETOWN, Ct., Sept. 27.—James Ahern, better known as Jimmy Taylor, a local character, was instantly killed by a train to-day about a half-mile east of the Portland station.

CAUCUS NIGHT FOR LEAGUE IN NEW BEDFORD

NEW BEDFORD, Sept. 27.—All arrangements have been completed for the Independence League caucuses, which will be held in this city to-night. A largely attended meeting was held in Weneers' Hall last evening and officers for the various wards were appointed.

On a motion by ex-President William Holland, it was voted to put the League's own men in the field for Representatives to the General Court, and by a unanimous vote William McLean was made candidate from the Eighth District and Thomas W. Kelliher candidate from the Seventh District.

Mr. Holland declared that there were hundreds who desired to vote for the League principles and said if some good live men were placed in the field it would add strength to the organization.

The following officers were also elected: James S. Monahan, president; William McLain, vice-president and Matthew J. Hart, financial and recording secretary. Mr. Holland, the retiring president, refused to again be a candidate, but was made treasurer.

DRINKS POISON; DIES IN TERRIBLE AGONY

LYNN, Sept. 27.—As Fred G. Bonner, a steamfitter, thirty-five years old, staggered into the kitchen of his home on Fayette street, he said to his wife:

"I've taken poison," and then sank into a chair.

Before medical assistance could be secured [illegible] as the result of a draught of carbolic acid.

SOCIALISTS DECLARE WAR ON FAIR CHIEF

AMESBURY, Sept. 27. — Indignation among the Socialists here is at the highest pitch, and a mass meeting has been called for to-night to take steps by way of protest against the action of the officials of the Amesbury-Salisbury agricultural fair in refusing, as it is alleged, to allow the Socialist candidate for Governor, John W. Brown, to speak at the fair grounds on Wednesday last.

Brown's friends assert that he came to the fair at invitation of the officials to speak on Wednesday afternoon. They further state that on that afternoon Brown waited until 4 o'clock for his turn to speak. When he finally arose, the band refused to stop playing. Indignant at the treatment received, he went in search of President Bartlett of the agricultural association. Bartlett could not be found, and Brown's friends claim that he hid himself so that Brown would not get a chance to speak.

The only explanation that President Bartlett offers is that he was called away on important business at the time Brown was looking for him. He says that Brown was not invited to speak by the officials, but that he applied for the privilege and was told that he would be allowed to speak if he did not introduce politics into his speech.

FUSE CAUSES FIRE SCARE

Fire on the fourth floor of No. 8 Summer street, occupied by Noyes Brothers, men's furnishers, caused much excitement but very little damage to-day. n electric fuse in the elevator machinery blew out, setting fire to a quantity of grease and waste lying about the machinery. The elevator boy ran to Hawley and Summer streets and turned in an alarm. The fire was put out with an extinguisher. The fire apparatus held up traffic for a short time at Washington and Summer streets.

FORMER MAYOR SUFFERS SHOCK

Former Mayor Everett J. Stevens of No. 178 Pleasant street, Malden, while riding in his automobile to-day, was stricken with apoplexy. The former Mayor was rushed to his home and physicians summoned, who pronounced his condition as very serious.

Mr. Stevens is one of Malden's best known citizens, being president of the United States Sand Paper Company and president of the Malden National Bank, as well as heavily interested in several other important concerns. He has a wife and several married daughters.

BITTER RACE WAR FEARED

By Boston American Leased Wire.

MOBILE, Ala., Sept. 27.—The report reached Whistler, Ala., five miles from here, last night, that negroes near Plateau and Magazine Point were holding secret meetings for the purpose of organizing to make reprisals for the lynching of the negro, Mose Dossett, on Sunday morning by a mob of masked white men.

Immediately on receipt of this report a number of Whistler citizens met and organized for the protection of their homes. All the firearms in town were brought out and distributed and a patrol arranged to guard against sudden attack.

ARREST IN MYSTERY OF COLEBROOK MAN'S DEATH

JEALOUS QUARREL NOW SUSPECTED TO HAVE LED TO TRAGEDY.

COLEBROOK, N. H., Sept. 27.—Lewis Gadwah, the farm hand who was arrested last night in connection with the murder of David Laughlin, a wealthy Columbia farmer, appeared in court to-day for a hearing.

Gadwah admitted being with the aged man Wednesday night before he was robbed of $800, his head battered in and his body cast into a corner of the carriage shed where it was found. He stoutly denies, however, that he knows anything of the tragedy.

Though the officials are positive that Laughlin was robbed, they now declare that it was a quarrel over a woman which really led to the shocking crime. They believe that Laughlin and Gadwah had some argument earlier on the night of the murder in which a woman's name was mentioned. The prisoner says that he and the farmer were talking in the store of Harry Legro only a short time before the mutilated body was found by D. Allen Noyer, master of the Grange, who was going home from the meeting.

Find Bloody Iron.

Gadwah's arrest was ordered by County Solicitor J. Howard Wight after careful investigation all day, in which the county solicitor was assisted by Sheriff Holman A. Drew, County Commissioner Miles Gray and Lawyers Walter Drew, J. H. Dudley and Cushman Parsons. It was the last who found the bloody piece of iron.

The evidence on which Gadwah is held is wholly circumstantial. He withstood Solicitor Wight's examination without any conflicting statements.

A blood-covered piece of a mowing machine weighing over eight pounds was found among some machinery piled up about thirty feet from where the body was found. This piece of iron fits the wound in Laughlin's head, one blow having beaten in his skull. He must have died instantly.

Laughlin's missing horse and carriage, with which he drove here from South Columbia, were found yesterday in a field three miles south of this village.

$800 Was Missing.

The murder of Laughlin, who was sixty-five years old, was one of the most brutal crimes ever known in this section of the country. When the body was found all the pockets of the clothing were turned inside out, and $800 which Laughlin is known to have had some hours earlier was missing.

When Noyes and two other grangers went to the shed in the rear of Lombard Brothers' store they stumbled over Laughlin's dead body, lying face downward in a pool of blood, the skull battered in and still warm.

NEW PLEA TO SAVE SEARLES FROM PRISON

FARMINGTON, Me., Sept. 27.—Jesse Searles, as a monster, as a snake in the grass, separating two loving hearts, breaking up a happy home and finally driving his brother to murder his wife and mother of his children is the picture which will be held up before the jury at the October sitting when the trial of Harvey Searles is called. This, with the unwritten law, it is hoped will save the strangest prisoner in all Maine's criminal history from a life term in jail.

Searles was not brought to jail here until this morning. It was expected that he would be in court yesterday, but he was left in the care of Doctor Sanford at Augusta, who has had the lad under observation to determine his mental condition.

"Harvey wasn't in his right mind when he did it," said the aged mother, bowed down with grief. "He was always a good husband and he did so love Phyllis and their dear little children.

"My poor boy's head was crazy. I am confident when the jury hears his story of a broken heart they will acquit him."

Doctor Sanford has finished his examination of the boy and has agreed to turn him over to the court at any time.

FATHER THOUGHT CHILD WOULD DIE

Suffered with Cuban Itch, and Sores Covered Body from Head to Foot —Would Claw Himself and Cry All the Time — Could Not Be Dressed — Mother Advised to Try the Cuticura Remedies.

CURED BY CUTICURA AT EXPENSE OF 75c.

"My little boy in the Spring of 1901, when only an infant of three months, caught the Cuban Itch from one of my neighbor's babies. Sores broke out from his head to the bottom of his feet. He would itch and claw himself and cry all the time. He could not sleep day or night. I had to wheel him in his carriage most all the while to keep him still. He could not bear to have his clothing touch him, and only a light dress is all he could wear. I can't begin to speak in words the suffering the poor child had to endure. I called one of our best doctors to treat him, and he said he had the Cuban Itch, and his treatment did not do any good. He seemed to get worse. He suffered so terribly that my husband said he believed he would have to die. I had almost given up hope when a lady friend told me to try the Cuticura Remedies. She said she cured her little girl's ear, which was nearly eaten up with the eczema. I got a cake of Cuticura Soap and one box Cuticura Ointment, and I washed him all over with the Cuticura Soap and applied the Cuticura Ointment and he at once fell into a sleep, and he slept with ease for the first time since two months. When he awoke I applied it again, and it gave him much ease, and after three applications the sores began to dry up and improvement began to show, and in a few days the hide from the bottom of his feet and inside of his hands began to peel off. I only used one cake Cuticura Soap and one box Cuticura Ointment to complete the cure of the dreadful disease, and in just two weeks from the day I commenced to use the Cuticura Remedies my baby was entirely well. The treatment only cost me 75c., and I would have gladly paid $100 if I could not have got it any cheaper. I feel safe in saying that the Cuticura Remedies saved his life. He is now a boy of five years, and is as well as any child you ever saw. Mrs. Zana Miller, Union City, R. R. No. 1, Branch Co., Mich., May 17, 1906."

EAT WHAT YOU WANT

Science Has Now Found a True Way to Cure Indigestion.

A few years ago, when a sufferer from indigestion went to a stomach specialist, the result was a rigid diet list that almost meant starvation.

By dint of the most patient experiments, science has finally found out that to make sure of good digestion you should eat what your stomach asks for; of course, using moderation.

But the first thing to do in the case of indigestion or stomach weakness is to strengthen the muscular walls of the stomach and intestines, so that they will care for the food that is eaten. In no other way can this be done as well as by taking a Mi-o-na tablet before each meal. This restores strength to the stomach muscles and stimulates the pouring out of gastric juices, so that the food is digested readily and its nourishment retained in the system to build up energy and vitality.

Do not think the sick headache, heartburn, bad taste in the mouth, coated tongue, spots before the eyes, sleeplessness and the many other symptoms that are the direct result of indigestion, will go away of themselves. The stomach must be built up and strengthened by Mi-o-na before you can be well and strong, free from suffering and distress.

In many of the best homes in Boston and adjoining towns the handy little Mi-o-na tablets, so pleasant to take, yet so effective, have given quick and lasting relief from indigestion and that disagreeable full feeling after eating.

Mi-o-na is sold by druggists everywhere for 50 cents, and we positively guarantee to refund your money should you purchase a box and be dissatisfied with results. Write for free sample, addressing Booth's Mi-o-na, Box 977, Buffalo, N. Y.

TO PROBE PIPE LINE MYSTERY OF STANDARD

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—Frank B. Kellogg intends to drive his probe deep into the very heart of the complicated and mysterious workings of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey. To-day it was learned that he had summoned Joseph Seep of Oil City, Pa., and P. S. Trainor to appear here in the suit of the government to dissolve the parent corporation.

Seep is in charge of the Seep agency, which buys all the crude oil purchased by the Standard of New Jersey from any source. After Seep has bought it the oil pours into the Standard's pipes, whose name appears as the shipper on all the books of the pipe line companies.

Kellogg is anxious to know all about these little peculiarities of the Standard system, and will seek to force the witness to tell why such measures are taken. He has become greatly interested in the pipe lines since he learned that the Indiana pipe line made 400 per cent. profit in 1903 on its capital of $1,000,000.

BOSTON PORT FOR NEW LINE

The Austro-American line steamer, Sophia-Hohenburg, which is to inaugurate the passenger service between Boston, Trieste and Naples, arrived in the lower harbor yesterday afternoon. She will sail to-day with a passenger list of about 450.

It is the plan of the company to have their vessels sail from Boston, but on the return trip they will stop at New York and leave such passengers as they may have for that port.

CITY AND STATE WILL HONOR GENERAL BOOTH

GREATER BOSTON PREPARING FOR GRAND WELCOME FOR SALVATIONIST LEADER.

New England millionaires will be asked by General William Booth, commander-in-chief of the world's forces of the Salvation army, to help him found his proposed universal college of humanity, to teach people how to relieve the sufferings of the distressed.

General Booth comes to Boston to-night and will be here until next Tuesday morning. Mayor Fitzgerald and others will meet him when he arrives at the North Station at 9 o'clock. The General, escorted by a torchlight procession, will then go to the Somerset Hotel.

Plans Busy Sabbath.

There will be a united soldiers' meeting at People's Palace Saturday evening. Sunday will be a busy day for General Booth. He will speak at three meetings at the Boston Theatre, at 10:45 o'clock, morning; 3 o'clock, afternoon, and 7:30 o'clock, evening. Governor Guild will preside at the afternoon meeting and with him on the stage will be a number of the leading men of Boston.

General Booth will be at the Chamber of Commerce at 2:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Tuesday morning he goes to Schenectady, N. Y.

The patriarchal leader of the Salvation army is making a most remarkable tour of the United States. He is seventy-eight years old. He has been called the greatest traveler in the world, visiting every nook and corner on earth in his inspections of the 700 corps of his army. This year he twice crossed the American continent on his way to and from Japan.

He lives like a monk, in the simplest of places and on the most humble fare.

Honored by Oxford.

Oxford University last June conferred upon him the degree of Doctor of Civil Laws, the highest scholarship honor England can bestow on her great men.

Forty years ago considered a religious crank, to-day he is recognized as one of the world's great men. He started his career as a Methodist minister. When thirty-two years old he adopted his life's work as a Salvationist in East London. From that beginning there has sprung into being an organization that has 18,000 commissioned officers and 700 corps in fifty-three countries.

LOWELL POLICEMAN DROPPED BY BOARD

LOWELL, Sept. 27.—Lieutenant David J. Donaldson, chief of the police inspectors of Lowell, was discharged from the Lowell police force by the police board. The board held a long hearing last night and Donaldson pleaded guilty to charges of leaving the city without permission and of conduct unbecoming to a police officer. He admitted that he had been at Dewey Grove two weeks ago.

HOTEL MEN AT HARTFORD.

HARTFORD, Ct., Sept. 27.—Elaborate preparations are under way for the reception of the members of the New England Hotel Men's Association at the Hotel Garde to-morrow. A business meeting will be held in the afternoon.

FEAR SALEM MAN IS ADRIFT AT SEA

SALEM, Sept. 27.—If Ellsworth Lundgren of Salem is still alive, he is probably out at sea in an open dory, without food or water. Lundgren has been missing since last Wednesday, when he was seen in the dory off Eagle Island, in Salem harbor.

SPENCER QUITS ADAMS EXPRESS

Caleb S. Spencer of Newton, for many years manager of the Adams Express Company, has resigned owing to ill health. His resignation was accepted yesterday, and George F. Baker, president of the First National Bank of New York, was elected as his successor.

Edward A. Taft was appointed general manager of the New England department.

BALTIC BRINGS CARGO OF 1000 PRETTY GIRLS

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—When the big steamship Baltic of the White Star line steamed up to her pier in the North River today one thousand rosy-checked maidens from "the ould sod," and other isles, beamed over the side and the air rang with merry voices.

The young women formed part of a consignment of girls that England, Ireland and Wales is sending over here this year to look for positions as servants or wives.

The reason for the influx of womanhood is not known, but it is thought that the low steamship rates acted as an inducement to most of the young women to take a chance in the country that many abroad think is to be a land of fortune for them. Then there are many young women who took a trip to Dublin for the exposition there and who are bringing back their sisters with them.

WASTED CASH IN FRISCO BRIBE

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 27.—That the United Railways paid bribe money when it was not necessary, and would have attained the desired end without spending a cent, is charged by the prosecution's witnesses in the trial of Chief Counsel Ford of the company for bribery.

Chairman Gallagher, and Supervisors Coffee, Coleman, Harrigan and Kelley, of the old board of Supervisors, already have testified to having received $5000 each for voting for the overhead trolley franchise although they would have voted for it any way. Other members of the old body of 18 take the stand to-day.

Jury Trials, Cry Labor Leaders of Hub, in Court Injunction Cases

Judge Taft Denounced as the Greatest Foe to Workingmen.

Denouncing Judge Taft as the one great foe of organized labor and taking up the battle cry of President Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor, the trade union leaders of Greater Boston have declared war on the secretary and his Presidential boom and mean to carry the fight for the right of a trial by a jury in all cases for the violation of injunctions brought against the labor men to the ballot box.

The issue, while a vital one to the labor organizations, was brought to the boiling over point by the arrival in this city of a circular in pamphlet form from Frederick N. Judson entitled "Labor decisions of Judge Taft.

The circular in all cases is addressed as "The Hon." and after recounting the various decisions made by Mr. Taft in labor cases it goes on to say:

"While these important decisions were rendered by Judge Taft, declaring the freedom of interstate commerce from illegal combination both of labor and capital, the limitations upon the rights of organized labor, as well as the essential principles involved in the right of organization for the betterment of their conditions, it would be an imputation upon the brilliant judicial record of Judge Taft to suggest that in any of these opinions he declared the law as a friend of any class, or that he made any judicial utterance in any of the cases other than as a living oracle of the law, bound to declare, in every case brought before him, not his own private judgment, but the judgment of the law."

Original Enjoiner.

In interviews granted a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter by a number of labor men in this city it was pointed out that Mr. Taft was the first judge to grant an injunction against a labor union. The interviews follow:

BY HENRY ABRAHAMS.
Secretary Central Labor Union.

"We in Massachusetts will use the ballot to defeat the men who favor applying injunctions in labor disputes. This issue will enter largely in the coming campaign Never in our history did we watch the records of Representatives as we do to-day. Public servants must be faithful to the trust reposed in them.

"When I am asked the name of the man who is the greatest enemy of organized labor in public life without hesitation I answer that it is our Secretary of War.

"He it was who discovered that the interstate commerce law applied to trades unions.

"Secretary Taft is a firm believer in applying injunctions in labor disputes. The courts never have and never will settle differences between capital and capital.

Forgets World is Moving.

"Our secretary forgets that he is living in a progressive age. He would turn the hands of the dial back. As a jurist no one knows better than he the agitation, and the time it took to bring about trial by jury. It is the cornerstone of our civilization. Remove it and the entire structure falls with it.

"We, the citizens of this great Republic, are determined that there shall be less judge-made law. Why, judges are only human and very liable to err. The veneration and awe that the courts were held in is a thing of the past.

"In monarchial England they passed the 'Trades Union Dispute Bill,' which repealed the well-known Taft-Vale decision in the House of Lords. We have not got so far yet, but hope to. Our President holds, and justly so, that judges are not above criticism.

"Judge Taft's attitude on the Philippine question is one that will not benefit us if adopted. He may be honest and sincere, but lacks a knowledge of present day conditions, and does not realize that the world does move."

BY ARTHUR E. WATSON.
Secretary Carpenters' District Council

"It will be hard when Mr. Taft's labor and injunction record is made fully public to deceive organized labor on the matter and to secure its support for his candidacy.

"No weapon in the hands of the employers has been so effective as the ready co-operation of the courts in issuing injunctions against labor unions. This policy we hold and hope to prove in the polls is due very largely to Mr. Taft's original injunction.

"Labor, as representatives of organized labor, believe that Mr. Taft's record and opinions are most reactionary, and that he is not entitled to any consideration by labor.

"Mr. Roosevelt, in my opinion, is most unfortunate in his selection of a candidate. Mr. Taft's labor record alone should unfit him for the high office for which he aspires.

"The circulars which are being sent out by Mr. Taft's campaign committee at Columbus, O., should deceive no one, and we hope that the crushing condemnation of organized labor at the polls will be his."

BY JOHN E. POTTS.
Business Agent of Carpenters' Union No. 33.

"Judge Taft granted the first injunction ever issued against organized labor in this country in 1888. I believe that Taft is, as President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor says, 'the standard bearer of injunctions in this country.'

"A man who is in favor of injunctions should not expect the support of organized labor. It is no surprise to labor organizations to have some attorney secure the support of some individual union man to head the candidacy of an enemy of labor.

"This circular from Judge Taft, issued by Lawyer Frederick N. Judson, is no more or less than the opinion of an individual. If any workingman takes any stock in this pamphlet it shows that he has no opinion of his own and has not the interests of his union at heart.

"It also shows that he is not looking to protect his family, but to protect the interests of the slick politicians.

"If the workingmen who earn their living by the sweat of their brow would stop and consider the power they possess they would not blame the employers for half that is done."

Sec. Taft Unfit, Cry Boston Labor Leaders

We in Massachusetts will use the ballot box to defeat the men who favor applying injunctions in labor disputes.

We, the citizens of this great Republic, are determined that there shall be less judge-made law. Why, judges are only human and are very liable to err.

The veneration and awe that the courts were held in is a thing of the past.

——Henry Abrahams.

It will be hard to deceive the public and organized labor when his record is fully made public. Mr. Roosevelt is most unfortunate in his selection of a candidate. Mr. Taft's labor record alone should unfit him for the high office to which he aspires.

——Arthur E. Watson.

A man who is in favor of injunctions should not expect the support of organized labor.

——John E. Potts.

WE'RE PROVIDERS

Yes, we are providers of Clothing for those persons who rather pay a little every week than the whole purchase price at once. We found years ago that thousands of very desirable people would buy clothing if they could pay for it in weekly or monthly payments, and we established stores throughout the United States to cater to this class of valued patronage.

In this respect we are public benefactors, as we enable people to dress better, and in consequence give them more enjoyment and comfort in life, and we have stimulated generally the clothing business. Our host of imitators is an evidence of our success.

The SYSTEM is simple. You merely select your clothing from a large and varied assortment, and we open an account for you. It may occur to you that we take big chances. But we don't, as experience has taught us that people generally are honest. We have the LARGEST ASSORTMENT, the LOWEST PRICES and the MOST LIBERAL TERMS.

Suppose you step into our stores and learn more about our way of doing business. In the Ladies' Department you will find Suits and Cloaks in styles and patterns which delight the eye and become the form. Millinery, Shirtwaists, Skirts, Shoes, etc.

Men's Department is complete in every particular. Suits, Fall and Winter Overcoats, Hats and Shoes.

In the Children's Department you will find goods and prices to please you. We are giving special attention to this department this season. EVERYTHING SOLD ON CREDIT.

TANGUAY SUED FOR $50,000

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—"Eva Tanguay, 10 to 1," backed down to "Eva Tanguay 1 to the United States Treasury," are the odds that resulted to the breaking up of a theatrical critic's home yesterday. Shortly after Miss Tanguay had been served with papers in a $50,000 alienation suit and the critic with divorce papers, the actress was back on the stage, singing blithely, "I May Be Crazy, but I Don't Care."

The divorce suit is brought by Mrs. Martha Zittel, against her husband, Carl Zittel, who for some time has been employed by an evening newspaper to get up a theatrical chart patterned after the race track "dope sheets," in which the odds he fixes on the various actresses is presumed to be a sure key to their success with the public.

This chart, out of which he is said to have made considerable money, is what is brought on his marital woes, for his wife by studying it carefully observed that Miss Tanguay's odds were being backed down all out of proportion to other odds.

N. Y. TRACTION PROBE TO GO ON

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—If anybody believed the appointment of Adrian H. Joline and Douglas Robinson by Judge Henry Lacombe as receivers for the New York City Railway Company would cause the public utilities board to stop delving into the secrets of that and the other companies which go to make up the Ryan-Belmont traction merger, they reckoned without Counsel Ivins of the utilities commission.

The work is to go on to the very end; every secret is to be laid bare; every detail of financial operations and juggling is to be uncovered, and every physical aspect of the system taken up and looked at with scrutinizing eyes.

The work of the commission will go on as though the receivers had never been appointed," said Mr. Ivins.

STRANGER FREES CARRIE FROM JAIL

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Carrie Nation, who went to the workhouse a few days ago rather than pay a fine of $25 for crusading against cigarettes in the street, is again at liberty. A tall stranger paid $22, the balance due on the fine. He did not give his name.

16 DROWN AS BOAT CAPSIZES

By Boston American Leased Wire.

MOBILE, Sept. 27.—Leslie Vernuille, the son of W. B. Vernuille, chief engineer of the government works at Mc-Dreves shoals on the Tensigbee river, and fifteen negroes were drowned in the river about noon yesterday. They were crossing the stream in a little ferryboat en route to their dinner, when they drifted down stream and the craft became uncontrollable and capsized in the rapids. Two of the negroes in the boat scrambled on top as it overturned, but the others were thrown in the swift current. Late in the afternoon both negroes were saved, but no trace has been found of the others. The river is being dragged.

ALL MAIL MATTER WILL BE WEIGHED

The Postal Department has inaugurated a system of weighing all mail matter, letters, packages and papers in all the offices and stations throughout the country.

The purpose is to obtain statistics and other information, as required under an act of Congress passed on March 2 last.

LUSITANIA'S NEW RECORD

QUEENSTOWN, Sept. 27.—The Cunard line's Lusitania arrived at this port at 3 a. m. to-day, making the passage from New York in five days, four hours and nineteen minutes, and breaking the Lucania's record by three hours and four minutes. This gives the new steamer both the east and west bound records from Queenstown to New York.

WHITNEY CAMPAIGN NO. 2

Sell New Haven—Buy Boston & Maine

Savings Bank Depositors—Attention

Savings Bank Officers—Warning

The savings banks in Massachusetts take the savings of the people. They pay 4% annually for the use of this money. The people are led to believe their savings are invested in absolutely safe securities. I have maintained that these savings of the people are borrowed by the System robbers at 4% and so used in the pillaging of the people as to return 24 to 124 per cent.

Right here—Nothing I say or write in regard to savings banks is intended to reflect upon the integrity, ability or honest intentions of savings bank officers or trustees. My investigations have shown me that there are an all-around better class of people in the country than the men who manage Massachusetts savings banks (with a few exceptions). Whatever these men do is the best they can do for their depositors and they cannot possibly do better until present financial methods are changed by the people themselves.

The 24 to 124 per cent is drawn from the people through their buying of System-franchised stocks and bonds which the System manufactures for the purpose of selling to the people.

Let us see.

Henry M. Whitney says that I'm no politician, but a financial expert. The people of Massachusetts can take his word for it and watch me during the coming forty days straighten out that tangle of New Haven frenzied facts and figures which have straitjacketed so many other experts in their endeavor to stand them on their feet and keep them there long enough to be photographed.

When I started Frenzied Finance on the trail of the insurance frauds, Standard Oil and its myriad of secret corporation lays, I said: The reason the public really knows nothing about the actual condition of these pillages of the people is—

The System spends each year vast sums of its loot in educating the people backwards—away from real conditions. They pile lies upon piled lies until no truth can be found; until the people, dazed and numbed with each new investigation, are more than ready to seek those folding trap beds manufactured by the System's expert jugglers for the undoing of the people.

I said in launching Frenzied Finance that I did not propose following the example of my predecessors who have honestly attempted to enlighten the people, and led them still deeper into the tangles of high finance. My purpose was to boil all existing facts, figures and tangles into a stable colloid which would be not only easy eating, but which could be digested without taxing time or intelligence.

All know the result; the American people now know Frenzied Finance as well as though they had spent their entire life in tracking the thusness of finance through the whichness of political economy into the whyness of sociology. In other words, I cut out those papier mache creations of the System's experts, which they, the people, have been educated to believe were the real powers of the world of business.

The path I blazed has given free in- and outgress to Roosevelt's Sappers & Miners so that it is everyday pick and shovel play for the people to see and understand just how a small coterie of Standard Oil high-waymen made monkeys out of eighty millions of intelligent Americans to the tune of one thousand millions of dollars in eight years.

What I said then will now blanket this New Haven financial devil fish.

A few years ago the System, finding that the New Haven water they had reservoired for the drowning of New England's savings was creeping up under their own bonnets, imported from James J. Hill's Western dollar incubator one of the great railroad securities jugglers—Mr. Mellen.

They said to him: We will turn you loose in our New Haven dollar ocean, and we expect you will make every gill of our gelatinized liquid so resemble solid gold as to allow us to substitute it to the last drop for the contents of New England savings vaults.

Mr. Mellen was allowed to practise for awhile in one of New England's rural pastures with the result that the St. Johnsbury & Lake Champlain road's big annual deficit was made to look as much like a surplus as to allow the road to be slid into the Boston & Lowell. Then the Boston & Lowell was crowbarred onto the Boston & Maine, whose stockholders even up to today are donating annually a portion of their net earnings to meet that still existing deficit. Then Mellen was turned loose in the New Haven seaway with the present result—a palpitating glutinous four hundred million dollar stock and debt which threatens to inundate all New England.

The Boston & Maine and New Haven systems differ but very little in their total length of track, very little in their total tonnage.

The Boston & Maine has all told but $62,000,000 of stocks, bonds and liabilities!

The New Haven has about $400,000,000 of stocks, bonds and liabilities!

"Impossible! We do not believe it"—All right, you will see it plainly before I am through rubber-booting the Whitney sewer—as plainly as the American people are now seeing the billions of Standard Oil pillagings which but a short time ago they said were the inventions of my running-wild brain.

As I said at the beginning, I will take no chance of muddling up the people with too much or too deep diagnosing of facts and their fixings at one sitting.

In this chapter I will say I have in front of me New Haven facts, figures and fixings in sufficient quality and quantity to keep Roosevelt's Board of System Sleuths working overtime.

My life environment and education has been such that these things are open books to me. While they might be unintelligible if thrown at the people in a lump or without their minds being carefully and kindergartenishly prepared for them, I pledge the people of New England they clearly show to me a condition which would cause me to plead guilty to moral crime if I did not, were I a trustee of New Haven stock, sell it at any price I could secure down to 50, yes down to 40 per share, or if I were a trustee or officer of a savings bank or trust company owning or loaning on the "securities" of the New Haven outlit, I did not at once sell, or demand payment of the money loaned.

"The New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad has gross earnings of about one-third more than the gross earnings of the Boston & Maine railroad. Its capital stock on which it must earn and pay dividends is more than three times the capital stock of the Boston & Maine railroad. Its bonded indebtedness is more than five times as much; and, including its liabilities for the mortgage debt and debentures of the Consolidated Railroad Company, is more than six times the total liability of the Boston & Maine railroad for bonded debt. The Boston & Maine railroad is practically free from mortgages on its property. On the other hand, the mortgage indebtedness of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad is greater than the entire bonded indebtedness of the Boston & Maine railroad. It is greater than the entire capital stock of the Boston & Maine railroad. Its total liability for mortgage debt and debentures and capital stock is more than five times the total liability for capital stock and bonds of the Boston & Maine railroad."

The above is not mine, but I have gone over the New Haven affairs sufficiently to indorse its correctness.

Listen, Mr. Stock-&-Bond Holder, Savings Bank Trustee & Officer.

There are eighteen millions of these securities in the savings banks of Massachusetts.

Stockholders, bond holders and bank officials at this present time are under the impression that the New Haven road is an institution coming under the supervision of Massachusetts and perhaps federal authorities. Instead,

Listen.

The entire New Haven outfit has been shifted to a corporation with a charter from the State of Connecticut which

First, takes it and all of its affairs absolutely out of the control of Massachusetts or any other authority than its (for corporation purposes) absolutely controlled home State, Connecticut.

Second, allows it to enter, in addition to its transportation business, into the—any other business that the human mind can conceive of, from wild cat mining to gambling in its own stocks and bonds.

Third, allows it to increase its stock to any amount.

Fourth, allows it to issue stock, at practically any price it sees fit to put upon it, for the stock or securities of any other concern, a majority of whose stock it may acquire.

Illustration. If it acquires for $20,000,000 the stock of a trolley line actually worth $5,000,000 it can pay the syndicate from whom it acquires it in New Haven stock at say $100 per share thereby pulling down the stock of an innocent holder who has paid $200 per share for it to a $25 a share basis.

Fifth, allows it to mortgage its entire property.

Illustration. Insiders foreseeing or forecreating a crash could, after the crash, through a new mortgage, secure the entire property subject only to whatever mortgages were on the property, thereby absolutely destroying all stock and certain class bond values.

There may be a more dangerous corporation structure in America. If there is I have failed to find it, and I have found some nauseatingly rotten ones.

Later—A Serious Word on This Campaign

Just to hand as this advertisement went to press—The Boston News Bureau, press agent for the New Haven, unlimbered its mud guns today.

"A Boston newspaper says Lawson has lost all his prestige."

"Lawson should go on the vaudeville stage."

"President Mellen refused to dignify the attack."

"Financial interests (the same old anonymous authorities) are assured upon personal honor that the New Haven road has done nothing towards the merger or the interest of any candidate."

"Every Boston & Maine Director but General Samuel Lawrence, who is holding up for $200 per share, is in favor of the merger."

Now let me say a few earnest word to the financial thugs I have seen fit to enter into battle with.

I know you all, root, branch and starting place. I am aware that I have tackled perhaps the biggest and dirtiest contract ever entered into by financial man, not excepting the "Insurance-Standard Oil" which I took on three years and four months ago, but you one and all can rest assured I will, barring death, be with you to the end.

In this same news bureau ten years ago, then press agent for Henry M. Whitney in the New England Gas & Coke swindle, I read "Lawson is a Joke." "Whitney pledges his sacred honor that the $17,500,000 stock and $17,500,000 bonds of the New England Gas & Coke Company have more than dollar for dollar real value behind them."

I afterwards stood by when the State and federal courts, showing up the contemptible swindle, put the New England Gas & Coke Company into the hands of a receiver and wiped its $35,000,000 of bogus securities off the face of the earth, and showed that it had only cents of value where Whitney had pledged his sacred honor that it had dollars, and ordered Rogers to refund the vast sums out of which he, through Whitney as a cat's-paw, had fleeced the gas stockholders.

I read in this same news bureau three years ago, then press agent for the Standard Oil, that Rogers and Rockefeller in short order would bury me forever, and later I stood by and, listening to their pitiable pleadings and observing their miserable humiliation, gave to them evidence which would have placed them behind prison bars.

Now I pledge myself to the public that if I live I shall stand upon the ruins of one of the most colossal impositions ever attempted on an American community.

As I said to Whitney at the inception of the New England Gas & Coke swindle, as I said to the insurance grafters at the inception of my exposure, as I said to the Standard Oil robbers when I fired my first gun, so I say now:—Time will vindicate my "attacks" or—bury me.

I might as well say now, I know why the Boston & Maine directors, with the exception of General Lawrence, were willing to exchange their holdings in Boston & Maine, which was then and has been for years honestly earning over 9% net annually, for the stock of a scheme which, while paying 8%, had not earned it and should not have been paying 4%.

I might as well say now, I know how Whitney greased the State House ways for the running through of the merger, how in spite of regulating the machinery the $100,000 wrangle put the whole mess on the rocks, and I might as well say now I know "buried" things on New Haven which will make the Insurance and Standard Oil, so far as yet exposed, resemble cats playing with yarn balls compared with tigers tossing raw meat, and that, as I did in the nasty insurance and Standard Oil mess, I will tell them in my own way, and at my own time, regardless of the threats or taunts of as nimble a gang of cut-purses as ever raided defenceless women and children.

THOMAS W. LAWSON

Boston, September 27, 1907.

AGED LOWELL MASON DEAD

LOWELL, Sept. 27.—James L. Fay, one of the oldest and most highly respected residents of this city, is dead at his home, No. 105 Nesmith street, aged eighty-seven years.

Mr. Fay was one of the pioneer members of the Lafayette Lodge of Masons of Manchester, N. H., with which he became associated before coming to this city. He never actively entered public life, but always had a keen interest in his duties as a citizen. He was remarkably active for a man of his years, although he retired from business several years ago.

He is survived by six children, Henry J., Frederick T., Edgar L. and Albert J. Fay, Mrs. Albert L. Bachelier and Mrs. Thomas G. McGannon.

SAY VICTORS VIOLATED LAW

WALPOLE, Sept. 27.—Two of the town's most prominent Democrats, one of them a member of the Board of Selectmen, are to be summoned before the State Ballot Law Commission to explain the conduct of the Democratic caucus a week ago last Friday. They are P. H. Mahoney, who presided at the caucus, and Selectman C. D. Hale, and are leaders of the victorious faction.

The defeated faction, headed by William Moor, superintendent of the cotton mills, and John B. Rooney, a manufacturer, complained to the Ballot Law Commission that the caucus was conducted illegally. They allege that Mahoney, as chairman of the meeting, ruled that the use of a checking list was not necessary, and that the nominations on the State ticket should be made from the floor and not by ballot.

TEACHERS CITE HUB IN ERROR

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Sept. 27.—Some of the public school teachers here who have advocated their being paid every two weeks throughout the entire calendar year, and who told Superintendent Draper that the city of Boston had but recently adopted that plan, are today wondering how they were so badly mistaken in their facts.

When Chairman Little wrote to Boston he received this reply:

"Replying to your letter of the 21st inst. I desire to say that the teachers of this city, as well as all other employes of the school committee, are paid monthly, and not semi-monthly. The only change in the method of payment is that the date of payment is after the close of the calendar month, and not before the close, as has been the custom heretofore.

"Yours sincerely,
"STRATTON D. BROOKS,
"Superintendent of Public Schools."

H. M. FLAGLER SERIOUSLY ILL

BRETTON WOODS, N. H., Sept. 27.—Henry M. Flagler, vice-president of the Standard Oil Company, is seriously ill in the Mount Washington Hotel, Bretton Woods, N. H. His condition is such as to cause the gravest alarm to his friends. His personal physician, Dr. Kenan, and nurses are in constant attendance.

Mr. Flagler's illness is attributed to the effects of an attack of the grip, which seized him while he was in St. Augustine, Fla., last April. At that time he was badly weakened from overwork and worry, incident to the strain of raising funds for the completion of the Key West Railroad. He did not recover rapidly, and his physician advised his removal to a cooler climate. Early in the Summer he was brought to his Stone house, in Manuroneck, Westchester County, and a month later to the White Mountains.

Still Forging Ahead

For over twenty years we've been steadily going ahead—growing bigger, better and broader each year. Now come new improvements that will serve to make this store a handsomer, more commodious, more conveniently arranged shopping place than ever before. We are tearing out the dividing walls between our men's suit and overcoat salesrooms, and although our store is in the hands of carpenters, masons and electricians, it is so large, our facilities for handling crowds so advantageous, that we can attend to your wants as expeditiously and satisfactorily as ever.

Giving more for the money than other stores—selling only merchandise that's deserving of your faith and ours—giving "Your money back if you want it" when any doubts arise—these are what make this such a safe place to trade at—three of the reasons why we've grown so fast and so big.

Fall Suits for Men

It's as easy for Wolf's to undersell as it is for water to run down hill. We've been doing it for over twenty years—that's why it's so easy for us to sell at $10 suits for which other stores must get $12. $10

We intend that you shall get more for your money here than elsewhere. For that reason when you pay $12 for a suit of clothes you get a better value than $15 would buy anywhere else. $12

Suits that will live up to your expectation and sustain our reputation in great shape. You'd unhesitatingly say they're worth $18 or $20 if we should ask you to estimate their value. Merit shows in every detail. $15

Garments with distinctiveness tailored into them—not pressed into them. If you find as good elsewhere the salesman will tell you price is $28 or $30. Here's a saving worth any man's while. $25

Fall Overcoats for Men

A showing which in point of style and merit cannot be surpassed. Various lengths in all the smart Fall styles; most fashionable weaves and colors. Every price specified below stands for a much better value than the same price will buy elsewhere.

$10 $12 $15 $18 $20 $25

Boys' Fall Suit Specials

An unusual offer that spells economy of the right sort. Double breasted combination suits of fancy cheviots in new brown effects, with which, in addition to the regular pants, we're giving an extra pair of knickerbockers. Ages 8 to 16. $4 values for $2.95. 2.95

High-class suits that sell at $6 elsewhere. Snappy brown checks and stripes, fancy dark worsteds, all wool Scotch mixtures; double breasted; plain or knickerbocker trousers. Ages 8 to 17. 4.95

Young Men's Fall Suits

At $7.50 we are offering a value that's as good as any suit you will find selling elsewhere at $9. There are worsteds in the popular club checks, cheviots in black and fancy effects—single and double breasted. Sizes 15 to 20 years. 7.50

At ten dollars we have the smartest showing of college styles to be found; broad, military shoulders, deep pointed lapels, full peg trousers. Newest shadings of brown—blacks, blues and fancy mixtures. $10

Special Sale Women's Fall Skirts

Some of the Things That Go to Make an "Accomplished" Girl

By Dorothy Dix

WHAT is an accomplished girl?

A plain and unvarnished answer would be that it is something that everybody wants their daughters to be, and nobody seems to know definitely just what it is.

The term, "an accomplished young lady," used to be a sort of blanket compliment that was thrown over every girl who could daub a little at painting, torture the "Maiden's Prayer" out of an unoffending piano that was all right if you'd let it alone, or who could libel nature by making wax flowers the like of which never was on sea nor land.

Nowadays we have grown more discriminating, and one of the humane movements of the day is the suppression of the amateur.

When we speak of a girl as being an accomplished musician or artist, we mean that she is a semi-professional, and by degrees the habit of wasting good money on trying to teach girls things that they can never learn is falling into disrepute, and we are devoting more time to instructing them in the pleasing graces of life than they can learn.

In other words, we are taming our accomplishments and domesticating them so that an accomplished young lady is not as fearsome an object as she used to be.

One Accomplished Girl

STILL, what is an accomplished young lady at the beginning of the twentieth century? Opinions differ. Mine is that she is a sort of Admirable Crichton in petticoats. She is a woman who can do everything that a woman needs to do well.

An accomplished girl is one who knows how to make the most of herself. She knows how to comb her hair, select her clothes and put them on after she gets them.

She may be pretty or she may be ugly, but she's never as ugly as she was made, because she knows how to enhance every particle of beauty that she has, and carries herself forty per cent. above par instead of fifty per cent. under.

She is a good needlewoman and can make her own things if she is poor, or if she is rich she can instruct her dressmaker how to give little touches of individuality to her costume.

She knows how to keep herself from looking soiled and bedraggled and what the French call chiffonnee, and wherever she is, she seems to have just the right clothes on and to be the most attractive figure in the landscape.

An accomplished girl knows how to read. She doesn't recite, unless she has a special dispensation from Heaven, but—and it's a rarer accomplishment than you would believe unless you have investigated the matter—she can read the headlines of the morning paper aloud so that you can understand them or even read a whole article aloud without setting on edge the teeth of every listener.

Can Write Letters

AN accomplished girl knows how to write a letter. Most girls don't. They can cover up forty-nine pages with hen track chirography without saying one single, solitary thing that conveys any meaning to an intelligent mind.

They never answer a question, although you may have written to them specifically for information on a certain point. All that they do is to cover up good paper with a wild waste of incoherent exclamations, mixed metaphors and indiscreet confidences.

An accomplished girl also knows how to write a graceful note of thanks and a tender letter of sympathy or congratulation.

Nothing is more amazing than the stolid silence that our friends maintain if they happen to be away from us when some grief or joy happens to us, and the explanation they offer for their rudeness is that they never know what to say in letters of condolence or congratulation.

If I had a girl to educate, she should be taught to write notes if she never learned another thing on earth, for the chances are if she was a good note writer nobody would ever notice her other deficiencies, and if they did they would forgive her for them.

An accomplished girl knows how to talk. She is not a conversationalist. God forbid. Neither is she a mute. She informs herself on a variety of topics, so that if she cannot meet a specialist on his own grounds in discussion she can at least listen intelligently.

Doesn't Get Foolish

SHE likewise keeps her wits about her and uses some discretion in tempering her conversation to the companion of the moment.

She does not tell a sick person how bad he looks, and how her dearest friend had that same disease and died of it after all the doctors in this country and Europe tried in vain to cure it.

Neither does she insist on holding forth about unhappy marriages to divorcees, nor defaulters to the woman whose son has decamped to Mexico with the available cash of his firm.

But she knows how to entertain or seem entertained by whomsoever she is with, and when a hostess sends her down to dinner or asks her to a reception it is with the blessed assurance that she will get along with whomsoever she is thrown with.

An accomplished girl knows how to sit and stand and walk. She doesn't sprawl over a chair, and when she enters a room she doesn't fall over the furniture, nor at the table does she upset things.

There is no excuse for the woman who is a bull in a china shop, and no girl's education is complete if she hasn't been taught to move with grace and ease.

An accomplished girl never giggles. She laughs and has a keen sense of humor. She smiles, and all that is delightful and alluring is in it, but she would almost as soon swear as to be guilty of the inanity of giggling.

Has an Honest Appetite

AN accomplished girl knows how to eat and is not ashamed of an honest appetite; she eats at specified times and places.

She doesn't munch candy nor chew gum at the theatre, nor on the cars, nor in public places. She knows that the cow is the only interesting ruminative animal, and she does not aspire to emulate her.

An accomplished girl has a low, soft voice. She doesn't scream or make loud noises. If her voice is by nature loud and harsh, she puts on the soft pedal and sandpapers its angles, and devotes as much time and work to cultivating a speaking voice as her mother used to do in trying to learn how to sing. And her rewards are greater.

To sum it all up, the accomplished girl is the girl who does the little daily things of life so well that she turns them into fine arts, just as the lapidary polishes a little black rock until it becomes a flashing diamond.

BREAKFAST JACKET

TWO yards of pretty organdy and a few yards of lace will make a charming little breakfast jacket. If cut in kimono or nightingale style make a "V" neck finished with a large collar trimmed with a lace frill; the sleeves flowing and similarly trimmed. Plain white or figured lawn will answer quite as well as the organdy.

HOW MILADY WILL LOOK WHEN SHE DONS THIS SEASON'S FURS

HERE is one of the very smartest of the new fur short coats, which promise to be the ruling style this Winter. This model is of seal, but the general design will be widely copied in every fur known to the trade. It is the height of fashion.

(By Courtesy of the Apparel Retailer.)

New Short Coats Will Be Stunning in Nobby Cut and Will Blaze with Embroidery

WITH the first crisp tinge of frost in the air woman's fancy turns instinctively to thoughts of Winter furs.

Already the shops are displaying the first of the new models in coats, coatees, ties, stoles and muffs, and the advance styles indicate a series of the most beautiful and artistic creations ever known.

Braidings, trimmings and broideries, which are such a feature of present fashions, play an important part on all the new furs.

Indeed, an unadorned coat or cape bolero is hard to find in this Winter's newest fancies, and this trimming is executed with such artistic discretion that the heavy appearance of former attempts in the same line is altogether avoided.

The photograph reproduced here is one of the smartest of the high-class little garments that will be the Winter's fad.

It is of sealskin, made in the short, semi-fitting, box coat style.

An effective lingerie touch is noted in the revers facings. The garment is unusually effective because of the handsome Egyptian embroideries of a rich brown shade which trim the fronts and the very high cuff of the seven-eighths sleeves, together with novel embroidered buttons in the same shade.

Black pony skin, which closely resembles the satin softness of caracul, will be extremely popular with those whose purses can stand the price. It is extremely durable and is practically waterproof.

One pony skin coat seen in a Boston store yesterday shows the kimono influence, in wide sleeves cut in at the shoulders. An ivory white satin lining contrasts effectively with a deep bordering of black silk braid. Oriental embroideries of blue, white and gold add a touch of color on the black satin vest-fronts.

While fashion demands extreme width of sleeve, many of the new coats have inner sleeves of gathered satin that fit snug enough for comfort.

Among the neckpieces, moleskin will be popular. Moleskin hats to match are in evidence, one pretty model being trimmed with blue and green shaded wings, grouped with looped bows of blue velvet, caught in by a gold buckle.

Fox will be much worn in spite of the constantly increasing price of recent years. One new creation has the bright-eyed head peering out between the paws at the back on the shoulders, while each end, in front, is finished off with a big brush, which hangs between two paws.

Girls, Don't Marry a Man with the Idea You Can Reform Him

By Beatrice Fairfax

STATISTICS in the divorce business in the State of New Jersey show that in 87 per cent. of the cases intemperance was directly or indirectly the cause of the trouble.

I have not the slightest doubt that in many of these cases the woman married the man with the intention of helping him to "reform."

The man who urges a girl to marry him and help him "reform" is doing her the gravest wrong that he possibly can.

If a man is brave enough and strong enough to reform he is brave enough and strong enough to do it by himself without being cowardly and weak enough to drag a woman into it.

After the reformation is a completed and established fact he can go to the woman, tell her the truth about himself and ask her if she is willing to join her lot with his.

Never Sure

NEVER a day passes that I do not receive letters from girls who ask my advice about marrying men who drink.

And nearly always they say, "He says that he knows that he can stop drinking if I will only marry him and help him fight."

Dear girls, if there was a sure and safe contract to enter into, I would bid you all go ahead and help all you can, but, alas, it is neither sure nor even probable.

If you know a man who is unfortunate enough to be addicted to drink, help him with your sympathy, but don't, I beg of you, contemplate for a moment marrying him.

On every side we see wrecked homes and broken-hearted women, and all because the head of the family is cursed by a love of drink.

We see miserable, starved children, little feet in worn-out shoes, little bodies poorly nourished and clothed and we find the head of the family is a drunkard.

"Is He Sober?"

DO you think you can afford to help a man reform and run the risk of being the mother of that kind of a home?

Can you bear to think of bringing children into the world who may be cursed by the inheritance of drink?

When a young man begins paying serious attention to you, the first thing you must learn about him is "is he sober?"

If he is intemperate have nothing more to do with him.

Intemperance means a wretched home and a wretched future for you. It will crush out your youth and happiness and leave you a broken-hearted, miserable woman.

No matter how attractive a young man may be, have nothing to do with him if he is intemperate.

Show your men friends a good example by never drinking any intoxicants yourself. You don't need them; no young girl ever does, and you will be a hundred times more lovable without them.

Never forget, little sisters, that your best guard against evil is your sweetness and purity.

Drink and a young girl should be as far apart as the poles.

DAILY PUZZLE PICTURE
Kinds of Berries

WHAT BERRY IS THIS?

ANSWER: ....

ONE of these puzzle pictures is published daily in the BOSTON AMERICAN. Twenty dollars in prizes will be given weekly for the best answers.

The $20 in prizes will be divided as follows:

First prize	$10
Second prize	5
Five prizes of $1 each	5
Total	$20

Cut out the puzzle picture each day, write your answer on each, and mail the complete set of seven to the Puzzle Editor, BOSTON AMERICAN, No. 80 Summer street, with your best suggestion as to what you would like to see in the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN.

Where lists are equally correct the prizes will be given to those making the best suggestions.

The list of prize-winners in last week's contest, together with the final picture in this week's series, will be printed in next Sunday's BOSTON AMERICAN.

FASHION BARS COLORED GLOVES

THE edict has gone forth that colored gloves are barred for the coming season, and nothing but white, black and possibly pearl gray will be worn. This sweeping decree is brought out in an effort to make the Fall toilets harmonious, for bright colored gloves would be an almost impossible accessory with the vivid shades in dresses that are to be used. And to avoid any jarring tone in a costume, black, white or pearl gray hand coverings seems to be the only choice.

BUCKSKIN GOLF SHOES

THERE is a new shoe for golf of buckskin, strapped with heavy stitching, and lined with soft kid. The sole is of rubber, as in the tennis shoe, but the forepart is furnished with an extra leather protection, studded with small hobnails. For those who require support for the ankle an extra high boot is made, fastening at the top with a double buckle strap.

FANCY BELTINGS PRETTY

THE fancy beltings were never prettier. They look like elastic, but have a slight cord in them, just enough to keep them trig and fit the waist line closely. They are shown in all colors, or white with colored figures, but the daintiest is all white with raised silk figures. The buckles that are worn are merely of frame work, and the belting is fastened to a slide and catch and run through the buckle itself.

"THE TURN OF THE BALANCE"

By Brand Whitlock

Copyright, 1907, by American-Journal-Examiner

BUT to Archie these forty days had not been forty days at all, but a time of infinite duration. He counted each day as it dragged by; he counted it when he came from his bunk in the morning; he counted it every hour during the long day's work over the hideous bricks he could find no joy in making; he counted it again at evening, and the last thing before he fell asleep. It seemed that forty days would never roll around.

Liberty Again

They did pass finally, and a morning came when he could leave the comrades of his misery. He felt some regret in doing this; many of them had been kind to him, and friendships had been developed by means of whispers and signs, but more by the silent influence of a common suffering.

He had quarrelled and almost fought with some of them, for the imprisonment had developed the beast that was in them, and had made many of them morose, ugly, suspicious, dangerous, filling them with a kind of moral insanity.

But he forgot all these enmities in the joy of his release, and he bade his friends goodby and wished them luck. In the superintendent's office they gave him back his clothes, and he went out again into the world.

It was strange to be at liberty again. His first unconscious impulse was to take up his life where he had left it off, but he did not know how to do this.

For behind him stretched an unknown time, a blank, a break in his existence, which refused to adjust itself to the rest of his life; it bore no relation to that existence which was himself, his being, and yet it was there.

The world that knew no such blank or break had gone on meanwhile and left him behind, and he could not catch up now. He was like a man who had been unconscious and had awakened with a blurred conception of things; it was as if he had come out of a profound anaesthesia to find that he had been irrevocably maimed by some unnecessary operation in surgery.

Archie did not, of course, realize all this clearly; had he been able to do so, he might have avoided some of the consequences. But he had a troubled sense of change, and he was to learn it and realize it fully only by a slow, torturing process, a bit at a time.

He had the first sensation of this change in the peculiar gleam that came into the eye of a policeman he passed in Market Place, and he felt, too, when, half fearfully, he presented himself at the back door of his home. His father's fury had long since abated, but he showed that he could not look on Archie as he once had done, and Gusta showed it, too.

Bostwick may have thought he had sentenced Archie to forty days in prison, but he had really sentenced him to a lifetime in prison; for the influences of those forty days could never leave Archie now; the shadows of that prison were ever lengthening, and they were for evermore to creep with him wherever he went, keeping him always within their shades. He was thereafter to be but an umbra at the feast of life.

A Marked Man

Archie could not think of the whole matter very clearly; of the theft of which he had been convicted he scarcely thought at all. The change that came in the world's attitude toward him did not seem to be mentioned or even suggested to him at home or elsewhere.

The thing that marked him was that he had been a prisoner. When he did think of the theft he told himself that he had paid for that; the score had been wiped out; the world had taken its revenge on him.

This revenge was expressed by the smile that lit up the face of the grocer whose herrings had been stolen; it had been shown to the satisfaction of the prosecutor when the judge announced his finding; it had been expressed by the harshness of the superintendent and the guards at the workhouse; it was shown even by the glance of that policeman he met in the market.

The world has wreaked its vengeance on him, and Archie felt that it should be satisfied now.

There was but one place now where the atmosphere lacked the element of suspicion and distrust, but one place where he was not made to feel the barrier that separated him from other men, and that was with the gang.

The gang welcomed him with a frank heartiness. They showed almost the same eagerness and pleasure in him that they showed in welcoming Soud and the others.

There was balm in their welcome. They asked no questions, they drew no distinctions. To them he was the same old Archie, only grown nearer because now he could unite with them in experience—they all had those same gaps in their lives.

That afternoon they celebrated with cans of beer in the shade of a lumber pile, and that night the gang went down the line. Having some money, they were welcome in all the saloons, and the girls in short dresses, who stood about the bars rolling cigarettes constantly, were glad to see them.

And Archie found that no questions were asked here, that no distinctions were made even when respected, if not respectable, men appeared, even when the prosecutor of the police court came along with a companion and spent a portion of the salary these people contributed so heavily to pay, even when the detectives came and received the tribute money.

And it dawned on Archie that here was a little quarter of the world where he was wanted, where he was made to feel at home, where that gap in his life made no difference.

It was a small quarter, covering scarcely more than a dozen blocks. It was filled with miserable buildings, painted garishly and blazing with light; there was ever the music of pianos and orchestras, and in the saloons that were half theatres bands blared out rapid tunes. And here was swarming life; here, in the midst of death.

TO BE CONTINUED.

TOMORROW'S BEST BARGAINS
IN BOSTON'S BIG STORES

THICKER than Autumn leaves bargains come pouring into the pathway of September shoppers. Amid such an embarrassment of riches the following hints will help solve the problem of choice:

Housewives will be interested in the bargain which Henry Siegel Co. will offer to-morrow in their grocery department. In the morning a lot of fresh blueberry loaf cakes will be baked and put on sale for 5 cents a loaf. They are regular 10-cent cakes.

MacDonnell's Tremont Temple Store will sell to-morrow a lot of square automobile veils, hemstitched all around, and in all the desirable shades, at 79 cents each. These veils have always sold at $1 and were good values at that price.

On Saturday James A. Houston Co. will put on sale for 79 cents in the corset department the remainder of a large line of drummers' samples, which have sold for $1.69 to $4. Some of these corsets have garters attached on the sides and front.

This is the time for the purchase of Winter hats. The very latest models in large felt mushroom shapes, trimmed with the popular stitched taffeta bows, can be purchased for 98 cents, reduced from $1.98, for to-morrow only, at Houghton & Dutton Company's.

Mothers who are looking for children's coats will be pleased with the offering which Butler's will make to-morrow. Red wool winter coats, in sizes from 2 to 6 years, will be reduced from $2.50 to $1.49.

A bargain for the home milliner will be found at R. H. White's to-morrow. Pressed velvet hats, with silk facing, in all the latest French shapes will be reduced to $1.79. They are regularly sold for $2.25 and are in all the latest colors—blues, browns, plum, etc.

An excellent bargain in fall suits will be found at Meyer Jonasson Co.s to-morrow, when there will be put on sale eleven tailored mixture suits, with Prince Chap coats and full plaited skirts with folds around the bottom, reduced from $25 to $13.75. Here you will also find six high-class silk tailored suits of good quality taffeta and ragali, beautifully trimmed, marked from $45 and $55 to $12.50. The beautiful full plaited skirts are alone worth that price.

All linen full bleached, hemstitched satin damask tray cloths—some with open work effects—will be reduced from 29 cents to 21 cents at Shepard Norwell Company's to-morrow.

The Glen Shirt and Collar Company will offer to-morrow a lot of ladies' embroidered collars at two for 25 cents. These collars have been selling all the season for 25 cents each.

Because of an unusually fortunate purchase they have just made, Jordan Marsh Company will give you a rare chance to buy Christmas presents at just half price to-morrow. They will have on sale a lot of beautifully decorated china vases, jars, etc., which will sell for from 50 cents to $3. Their values are just double these prices.

Cook Book Free For Choice Recipes

THE writer of every recipe printed below receives a copy of the BOSTON AMERICAN Economy Cook Book, a substantial indexed blankbook of 210 pages, bound in heavy oilcloth, especially designed to preserve these recipe gems in permanent form.

CAULIFLOWER PICKLE

TAKE one large cauliflower, pick in pieces, wash clean, and place in a kettle with two tablespoons of salt, and water to cover. Boil about ten minutes. Drain and pack in jars. Boil one pint of vinegar with one cup of sugar, two tablespoons of mustard, one teaspoon tumeric powder. Pour over the cauliflower.

MRS. H. McLAUGHLIN.
No. 482 Broad street, East Weymouth.

GRAPE JELLY

SELECT grapes that are not quite ripe. Remove the stems, wash and drain them; mash them until they are all broken, then boil about ten minutes; drain through cheese cloth and flannel, but do not squeeze. Measure the juice and put in a granite kettle; put the same measure of sugar into a big bowl; boil the juice ten minutes, then pour the boiling juice into the sugar, stir quickly and remove the froth. As soon as the sugar is all dissolved pour it into the glasses. It will thicken immediately.

MRS. C. PETERSON.
No. 79 Coburn avenue, Worcester.

SPICED CRAB APPLES

EIGHT pounds of apples, four pounds of sugar, one ounce of stick cinnamon, one-half ounce of cloves, one quart of vinegar; boil the sugar, vinegar and spices together; put in the apples when boiling and let them remain until tender—about twenty minutes. Then take out and put in jars. Boil down the syrup until it thickens and pour over the apples to fill jars.

Bingham, Me. MRS. L. W. GOULD.

DELICATE CRULLERS

TAKE four eggs, four tablespoons of lard, four tablespoons of sugar, a teaspoon of salt and half a nutmeg grated; one teaspoon of baking powder, a teaspoon of lemon extract may be added. Work into these as much sifted flour as will make a nice dough. Roll it about an eighth of an inch thick and fry as you would doughnuts.

CHAPTER V.

PONDERING over the details of the visit of our strange guest, going over incident after incident leading up to the slight agitation she had shown at seeing the ring before, I was struck by one thing to which I had given no thought before.

How was it possible for me to have read from right to left the headlines on the first page of the BOSTON AMERICAN, which Mr. Holmes was reading at the time the girl had betrayed the agitation?

I had no conscious impression of the subject of the headlines, but, subconsciously, I had an impression that I had read it to me as if I myself had held the paper, not in the reversed order, as it should have been had it been reflected by the mirror.

To test the matter, I held a copy of the same edition up to a mirror at the office and found the headline, in the mirror, ran from left to right and was therefore illegible at a casual glance.

Changed as my condition in not noticing the peculiarity at the time, I sat down and concentrated my mind to force the impressions I had received that moment from my memory. But all that I could get was a distinct impression that the headlines in the mirror had run from right to left, as the paper, and that they had been legible to me.

In the midst of my cogitations I felt a light touch of a hand on my shoulder, and looking up was not surprised to see Zara at my side, a gentle smile on her lips.

"I heard some one has been taking my name in vain," she said archly. "Have you discovered the criminal?"

"No," I replied, "but there's going to be action when I do."

She became very serious and questioned me closely, and at the end was silent and in deep thought.

"You must realize," she began slowly, "that this is a matter which concerns me very, very particularly?"

"Most assuredly," I replied, "and for that reason I——"

"You have nothing to do with it," she interrupted gravely, imploring for me; "it is far too important for me to get at the bottom of this for anyone to meddle with it."

"But what could be the young woman's motive in scraping such a message? She has asked nothing of us; she has not borrowed a cent; she has——"

"That is immaterial," Zara interrupted indifferently. "I am interested only in the identity of the person who knows of our——friendship."

"I have not been cautious, perhaps, giving you credit for your clever work," I admitted, "but I never imagined——"

She frowned slightly.

"You don't know and I cannot tell you how vital this is. Did your sister note the denomination of the bills with which Miss Knowles made her purchases?"

Feared Bank Robberies

"They were all large new bills," I answered. "While trying to get her to open a bank account, but Miss Knowles refused because she said she was afraid bank robbers would get her money. She had heard of so many bank failings in the West. That seemed suspicious to me."

"Very naturally," she commented.

"Do you think her story of coming all the way here from Seattle true?"

"Why shouldn't it be true?" she asked.

"Everything is true—until proven otherwise."

She rose in her quizzical mood now, which indicated to me that she had decided upon the line of investigation she should pursue.

"You will call at the hotel?" I asked, bidding me good-by.

"Yes," she said briefly, adjusting her gloves. "This evening."

"And you will let me know—soon?"

"This evening."

"What, can you find out by that time?"

She looked up at me, her eyes twinkling with mischief.

"I can find out, at least, just how stupid you have been," she replied laughingly; "good-by."

"But, Zara," I protested, "how shall I introduce you to my sister and Miss Knowles?"

"Think of some name," she said, indifferently; "say I have been in Alaska recently. It won't matter—I shan't meet Miss Knowles."

On reaching the hotel that evening, now, found my sister and Miss Knowles had been gone all day on an automobile tour of the suburbs. I therefore dined alone.

It was shortly after 8 o'clock that they returned, very happy and looking very guilty over their runaway escapade.

Miss Knowles uttered a little cry of delight when I spoke of the visit of Miss Snowden of Alaska, and she hurried off with my sister to dress for their belated dinner.

Nervous, perplexed over the outcome of the evening, I lighted a cigar and walked out under the trees of Commonwealth avenue.

Series of Thefts

There I came upon a no less significant personage than Michael Reardon, one of Boston's best detectives.

"What are you doing around here?" I demanded.

"I've been looking you people over," he said grimly. "There's been a lot of recent robberies in that hotel, and I'll be darned if I can make head or tail of them."

"When did they begin?" I asked quickly.

"Oh, about three months ago," he replied. "You know there are lots of apartments there that have been shut for the Summer. Every one of them opened so far this Fall have been found to have been visited. I've run down every one of the help, but there's nothing to show it must be a guest."

"Three months ago'. Miss Knowles had been with us but three days. It was impossible to connect her with depredations; besides, she had not been separated from my sister for any length of time since she had been installed in our suite.

I threw my cigar away and returned to the hotel.

In the dining room I found my sister eating alone.

"Where is Miss Knowles?" I inquired.

"Just gone to her room," she replied. She looks real sweet in her new things. Such a time as she had choosing what she should wear to meet your friend. And when she got ready she forgot her bracelet and went back after it."

This was interesting. Evidently Miss Knowles courted inquiry into her Alaska history. I was rather pleasantly impressed and entered into a fictitious narrative of the young explorer woman, Miss Snowden.

I was still speculating upon the robberies when Zara swept into the dining room, unannounced by a waiter, and mumbled an introduction to my sister.

The two women bowed very formally, Zara, I fancied, with a bit of very much more condescension than my sister.

Silly," began my sister, as Zara seated herself, "hadn't you better call Miss Knowles?"

"Miss Knowles left the hotel twenty minutes ago," observed Zara, quietly.

Concluded in Boson Sunday American

CONTEST CONDITIONS

THIS story will run through the week. The final chapter, in which the mystery will be solved, will be printed in next Sunday's BOSTON AMERICAN.

The only day on which no instalment of the story will appear will be Saturday. The next to the last chapter will be printed Friday, and then everybody will have until 9 p. m. Saturday in which to solve the mystery.

The person who solves the mystery most accurately will receive the first prize of $50.

If no one solves the mystery accurately, the one who comes nearest to a correct solution will receive the first prize.

REMEMBER

That this is a test of SKILL IN THINKING, not skill in writing. All you have to do to win first prize is to THINK OUT the solution of the mystery QUICKER than somebody else. The literary merit of the answers will not be considered.

That in case two or more answers are equally correct, the prizes will be awarded ACCORDING TO THE POSTMARKS ON THE ENVELOPES. Prizes are mailed first receiving the first prize, etc.

That persons living at a distance from Boston have just as good a chance to win prizes as those who live right in Boston.

NO ANSWER POSTMARKED LATER THAN 6 P. M. SATURDAY WILL BE CONSIDERED.

Address all communications to PRIZE STORY EDITOR, BOSTON AMERICAN, No. 80 Summer street, Boston.

"MADAM BUTTERFLY" TO BE SEEN HERE

Boston is to see a few performances of "Madam Butterfly" by Blanche Bates, on the final week of her stay here at the Majestic Theatre. Arrangements for a revival of this piece, in which Miss Bates originally appeared, were completed to-day. It will be given at popular matinees in connection with another one-act piece. David Belasco will come here to conduct the rehearsals.

To-day the Chicago White Sox come to the Hub to finish up their season in this burg and will furnish the diamond sport for three days.

Those two bumps the Sox got from the Athletics has taken considerable of the championship bug out of their crops and they will have to win about every game left on the schedule to even give the leaders a scare.

They won't have any reason to play the savage game the Tigers did and there's some chance of the Pilgrims finally putting something to their credit.

The Sox was one team which the Pilgrims have had a longing for all the season and have always been ready to hand it to them, which gives the fans some hope that the time has come to witness other things besides the regular unsavory menu served up to them as the daily stunt.

Sox After Revenge.

The Sox, feeling the stings of the Slowtown bunch, got into the Hub this morning in not any too pleasant mood, as the Eastern invasion has not been to their liking and when they get on the diamond somebody will have to smart for the lickings received along the road.

The Pilgrims will have to shake that scrambled egg baseball they exhibited to the public yesterday in the windup with the Tigers or they won't have a chance with Comiskey's boys. Or they won't be in it for the lemon championship with St. Louis.

NOTES OF THE GAME.

Jennings needed that win to keep up with the Athletics.

That was quite an assortment of pitchers. Five officiated in the game.

The Detroit rooters got in on time to warm up for the fray which starts to-day in Philadelphia.

Steele took Pruiett's place in the ninth, with Peterson as backstop.

There was another shakeup in the batting order. Sullivan was out of the game, Parent taking his place.

Chadbourne proved a good waiter. Three times he worked his way to first by letting the bad ones go by and killing the good ones.

Pruiett threatened to put the Tigers out of business. Twice he winged Coughlin and hit Payne in the head hard enough to fracture it.

Sullivan and Barrett were given a chance to bat in the eighth in place of the battery, but could do nothing with Mullin.

Wagner and O'Leary got the star plays. The former made his wonderful stop off Jones in the sixth and O'Leary slipped the noose on Parent's stinging grounder in the ninth.

Jack Egan got after Jennings and made him quit coaching the batter till he got to base. Hugh did that pantomime act then.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 27.—Judging by present indications, the Doves will not leave this city without some deals being made with the Pirates.

The local management is trying to procure Manager Tenney, Outfielder Beaumont and Pitcher Dorner. They are willing to pay almost any price for any one of these men, and if their offers of purchase fail, they are willing to make some fair trades.

The Pirates have been very much in need of a good first baseman, and they figure that Fred Tenney would best suit their purposes.

The outfield has also proved an impossible department to properly bolster this season, and now that Clarence Beaumont, their former possession, has recovered his batting eye and become one of the topnotchers in the National League, the Pittsburgs are very anxious to procure him.

The Pittsburg managers had made open negotiations for Gus Dorner, and they are willing to give most any man on their pitching staff for him.

It would not be surprising to see all three of the Boston players mentioned on the local pay-roll next year.

The Bostons are after revenge to-day for the beating they got by a close score in the opening contest here yesterday. Pat Flaherty, the ex-Pirate and Vic Willis, the ex-Beaneater, will probably be the opposing pitchers.

GANS AND MEMSIC FIT FOR BOUT TO-NIGHT

By Boston American Leased Wire.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Sept. 27.—Indications are that one of the largest crowds that ever paid to see a fight in Los Angeles will be in attendance at the Pacific Athletic Club tonight, when Gans and George Memsic come together in their twenty-round clash for the lightweight championship. The advance sale has been enormous and the reservations extra large.

Trained to the minute and two pounds under the required weight, Memsic lay around his cottage the better part of the day and took things easy, knowing that his training was over and that everything that was possible had been done to put him in condition to fight the battle of his life. He went on the road in the morning for a five and a half mile run. At the finish he weighed 134 pounds.

Tommy Burns is enthusiastic over his boy's chances. "I tell you George has got a grand chance," said he. There is just one way for him to fight Gans, and that is by keeping on top of the champion all the time, and that's what I'm going to make Memsic do. One thing I will not stand for is to have Gans using his pawing tactics, reaching out with his open hand and pushing and shoving his opponent's "face."

Memsic's seconds will be Tommy Burns, Abdo, the Turk, Eddie Chambers and Frank Fields.

Joe Gans spent his day before the fight learning how to drive a big automobile. The sports who travelled out to Arcadia had to wait for Joe. He was out on the road. When Gans was brought around to talk of the Memsic battle he expressed himself on the subject of the punch.

"Everywhere you hear this stuff about what will happen to me if I stick my jaw into one of those right-hand swings. I know that Memsic is a strong young fellow with a good kick, but at the same time what's going to happen to him if I let my right go hard once? I never hit Britt hard in all the fight.

"Now it won't get me anything to box with Memsic. When I hit him he is going to know it, and I am not going to get careless and give him an opening to pop me.

"Any man who can hit an average blow can deliver a knockout if he can put the blow at the right place. I can be knocked out if a man hits me on the point, but I don't intend to poke my jaw into a right swing. You can say for me that I intend to fight a careful fight, winning just as soon as I see an opening."

Gans did not work yesterday. He is at the weight, which has not troubled him in the least, and faces the fight with unlimited courage and confidence.

WHITE SOX GET IN TOWN FEELING GLUM

A doleful bunch of ball players, representing the city of Chicago in the American League, arrived in town to-day and prepared to play out their string with the Bostons, beginning this afternoon.

They have nearly given up hope of winning the pennant, although they do not say so. They say they are still there with the goods, but confess they have only one pitcher to finish out the season with. Smith, the piano mover, injured his knee in Washington; Altrock is down on his luck, Doc White is fragile and Roy Patterson, the St. Croix demon, is not in the best of form.

Big Ed. the Man Stay.

That leaves Big Ed. Walsh to bear the brunt of the battle. The large gentleman has been pitching every other day and will doubtless go in again the Bostons to-morrow.

Besides the ball players there are five war correspondents traveling with the team as follows: C. Dryden, G. Rice, "Harrisburg Jim" Creuseberry, "Broadway Charlie" Hughes and F. Xavier Finnegan. They started out happily, but are now sending their newspapers hard luck tales daily.

One "Fan" on the Trip.

A solitary Chicago fan, Jim McLean, by name and known as the "Chi Bug," is making the circuit with the White sox, and also making the best of it.

The wives of several of the players started out on the trip, too, in order to encourage their lords and masters. They are Mrs. Fielder Jones, wife of the manager; Mrs. Frank Smith, Mrs. P. Dougherty and son Jim, aged two years, and Mrs. Finnegan, wife of the war correspondent.

The White Sox realize that only a great piece of luck can bring them the pennant. If the Athletics and Tigers break even on the present series the Chicagos will still be in third position. If their pitchers were all in good shape they would not fear the outcome, but as things stand it will be a wonder if they are able to land the flag.

Secretary Charles Fredericks refuses to be interviewed and Trainer Jim Bardell is as silent as a clam.

K. OF C. TEAMS MEET.

The Charlestown Knights of Columbus will clash with Maplewood K. of C., for the championship, Saturday afternoon, at 3 o'clock, on the Malden High School grounds, Malden. The batteries for Charlestown will be Welch and Haywood, while Steed and McCullough will oppose them. The game promises to be close and interesting as the teams are well matched.

NO GAME AT CINCINNATI.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 27.—The game between the Cincinnati and Philadelphia National League teams was postponed yesterday. A double-header will be played Sunday. No game is scheduled for here to-day.

SPORTING NEWS SUMMARY.

FOOTBALL.

PRINCETON, N. J., Sept. 27.—Yesterday's Princeton practice was the hardest of the year. The coaches put the varsity and scrub through a severe two-half game, in which the varsity scored twice in the first half and once in the second. Harlan, McCormick and Reid went in as the first row of backs for the varsity, and did good execution on the scrub defence. In the second half Orr, Tibbott and Coxe replaced the first trio, but did not prove as speedy or powerful. Dawson, who went in as quarterback in the second half, played a clean, fast game.

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 27.—Page and Cooney made their appearance in the varsity lineup at left tackle and centre, respectively, Cooney having cleared away all his scholarship conditions. Tad Jones was again at halfback, and for the first time this year Alcott resumed his old place at right end. Wyle was played at fullback, instead of Coy. The coaches present were Knox, Veeder, Owsley and Flanders.

IN A PRACTICE scrimmage between the Mechanic Arts High first and second football teams on the Franklin Playstead, Dorchester, yesterday afternoon, Captain Henry McClay's shoulder was badly injured, and in all probability he will be out of the game for some weeks.

HANOVER, N. H., Sept. 27.—About ninety candidates reported to Dr. O'Connor at the oval. Many promising men were out for the first time, including Robbins, a 190-pound tackle from Baltimore; Daly, a back from Abington High; Jordan, a 240-pound guard from up the State, and Greenwood, a brother of last year's fullback.

BOXING.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—Young Kenny of Lowell will appear at the Paddock Athletic Club, Fifty-ninth street and Eighth avenue, to-night in a ten-round go with Frankie Madden. Kenny has fought four draws with Matty Baldwin, and he has bested Young Erne. He is said to be the shiftless fighter New England has turned out in a long time. Kenny fights from the word go, and his bout with Madden, who is one of the toughest and most promising youngsters in New York, promises to be one of the fastest battles seen around here in a long time.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 27.—Young Loughrey of Manayunk, although suffering from an attack of malaria, honored his agreement with the Broadway Athletic Club last night and met Kid Locke. The lightweight did not box like a sick man, for he gave Locke as much as he could attend to throughout the six rounds. At the end neither could claim an advantage.

BIDDEFORD, Me., Sept. 27.—An injury to one of his legs will keep Arthur Cote, a well-known boxer of this city, out of the ring for some months. He received the injury in an accident, Sunday, and is now using crutches.

MISCELLANEOUS.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—The Dixie repeated her performances of the last four days in the motor boat races on the Hudson and again broke down. The Den did not start, and Irene won the race for the international trophy, affording the only real race of the day, while the Sparrow led the interstate contestants.

THE ANNUAL golf tournament, under the auspices of the Boston Athletic Association, will begin on the links of the Wollaston Golf Club, Montclair, Tuesday, October 8.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 27.—Pronounced favorites swept the grand circuit racing yesterday. From a speculative standpoint the day was the quietest of the meeting. Major Delmar made an assault on the track trotting record of 2:02 made last year by Sweet Marie and failed. He tired perceptibly in the stretch. His time, 2:04¼, is the best made by a trotter anywhere this year. General Watts dropped a heat of the Horse Review Futurity to Miss Densmore by making a break when he was started for the lead at the half. He trotted all the way in the fourth heat and won in good time.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—Fifteen favorites beaten out of eighteen sent to the post is the record of the last three days' racing at the Gravesend track. The result is the bookies are fairly happy, but a strong play by educated insiders caused the big stool gentry to divide some of the long green they took from the unsophisticated public, which insists on playing what appears to be the best horse in the races.

GRAND CIRCUIT STEWARDS MAY GET AFTER COLUMBUS

What action will the stewards of the Grand Circuit take in the matter of the Columbus member having at its meeting gambling games in full operation not in any way connected with the racing?

This is the question that horsemen are asking one another, as they remember how last Winter at the annual meeting of the Grand Circuit stewards a rule was passed forbidding all chance games at Grand Circuit meetings except regular auction pool selling and bookmaking on the races.

It was well known that this action was directed against the Columbus association, where the "wheel" is reported to be the greatest revenue of its meetings. President Swisher and Secretary Shepard were both present when the stewards passed the rule, but in the face of the fact, at the meeting now on open gambling goes on without a question, fully half of the betting shed being taken up for the purpose.

Now arises the question as to which is the stronger, the Columbus Driving Association or the Grand Circuit, and if the latter at its next annual meeting will expel its delinquent member for defiantly breaking one of its most prominent rules for the government of the circuit tracks?

Surely the open running of sweat-cloth gambling devices is fully as disgraceful to the light harness horse sport as anything an owner or driver may do.

FIGHT FOR PENNANT STARTS IN SLOWTOWN

BATTING ORDER.

DETROIT.	PHILADELPHIA.
Jones, l.f.	Hartsel, l.f.
Schaefer, 2b.	Seybold, r.f.
Crawford, c.f.	Nichols, s.s.
Cobb, r.f.	Davis, 1b.
Rossman, 1b.	Murphy, 2b.
Coughlin, 3b.	Collins, 3b.
Payne, c.	Oldring, c.f.
O'Leary, s.s.	Schreck, c.
Donovan, p.	Waddell, p.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 27.—What may prove the deciding series in the great American League pennant race will open to-day between the Athletics and the Tigers.

The former are after winning two out of three from the World's Champion White Sox, while the latter have just taken three straight from the Pilgrims.

The rival teams are now tied for first place, and it is expected that the attendance for the series will prove the largest of the season.

This city is baseball mad at the prospects of another pennant coming to this city. Everyone is talking baseball. The staid business man seems to be just as enthusiastic as the small schoolboy, and both will probably use their utmost strategy to get out and see the series.

"Wild Bill" Donovan, the star pitcher of the Detroits, and the leading pitcher of the country, with twenty-four out of twenty-eight games won, will pitch for the visitors.

Rube Waddell, the lanky southpaw of the Philadelphias, than whom there is no better pitcher in the business when he is right, will probably start the game for the locals. If he is not in form, either Bender or Plank will be sent to the rescue.

BAN JOHNSON ON TRIP TO HUB

The biggest man in baseball, Ban Johnson honored the Hub with a visit to-day and was the guest of President John I. Taylor at the Huntington avenue grounds when the Pilgrims lined up with the White Sox.

The president of the American League is making his annual pilgrimage around the circuit and his visit has no significance in regard to the Boston team.

Mr. Johnson looks over the clubs in the league, and is always ready to offer suggestions which might prove of benefit.

It is evident that the genial president had heard of the big crowds of faithful fans who have followed the games closely at the present stage of the schedule, and came over to be one of them, inspite of the big show at Philadelphia to begin to-day.

HARVARD IN SCRIMMAGE PRACTICE TODAY

Coach Crane of the Harvard football squad intends to hold the first scrimmage of the season this afternoon.

Harvard's gridiron star, Burr, who has played left guard for the Crimson in such a finished fashion for two seasons that he has been the choice of all the experts in the country for the All-America eleven, has returned to Cambridge for his first football work of the year.

He is looking the picture of health after his long tour through Europe, whence he returned about a week ago, but was given the intervening time to get a good rest from his sea voyage. Burr will be the main stay of the line this season, and the man on whom Harvard will rely for her punting.

The squad has been reinforced by fourteen new players. They are W. C. Bowers, F. H. Burr, A. B. Mason, H. Gray, H. Harney, G. de K. Gilder, H. I. Hoffman, H. R. Clark, H. Fish, L. L. Forscheimer, L. Harding, E. Morris, M. B. Richardson, B. Hooper.

No regular varsity team can be said to have been picked, as the varsity men are scattered among all the trial elevens. The team which approaches the nearest to a first combination, is made up as follows: Kennard, l. e.; Robinson, l. t.; West, l. g.; Dore, c.; Alley, r. g.; Inches, r. t.; Macdonald, r. e.; Galatti, q. b.; Wendell, l. h. b.; Rand, r. h. b.; Apollonio, f. b.

NO GAME AT CHICAGO TODAY.

CHICAGO, Sept. 27.—Yesterday's game between Brooklyn and Chicago was postponed until Sunday, when a double-header will be played. No game is scheduled for here to-day.

MRS. BAZELEY WON TITLE.

WORCESTER, Sept. 27.—Mrs. Madeline Bazeley of Uxbridge wrested the Worcester County tennis championship in the woman's tournament from Miss Gertrude Strauss of Worcester in straight sets, 6—1, 6—2.

WAKEFIELD H. S. NINE WON.

WAKEFIELD, Sept. 27.—Wakefield High had little trouble in defeating Lynn C. H. S. nine yesterday, 17 to 4.

Slash! Slash! Slash!

About three-quarters of the tailors in this town have changed their store fronts to be exact copies or replicas of mine. So that my customers won't by mistake enter these stores and order clothing in the belief that they are trading with Mitchell the Tailor, I am going to completely alter my premises. My shop and workrooms will be combined with my salesrooms and all garments will be made on the premises under the eyes of my customers and under my personal supervision. By this arrangement I can explain the mystery of tailoring—the felling, staying, padding and stiffening of the inner parts of the garments. With a new and different store front, I will protect my customers from falling among Phillistines.

Make way for the carpenters—I must have room at once. Every yard of goods in the store has felt the ruthless slash of my Alteration Cut Price Sale.

Do Cold Facts Prove Anything in This World?

If So, Every New Englander Ought to Be Convinced That the Merger Is Nothing More Nor Less Than a STANDARD OIL Scheme

Copyright, 1907, by American Journal-Examiner

If anyone doubts that the proposed merger of the Boston & Maine road with the New York, New Haven & Hartford is a STANDARD OIL SCHEME, he should compare the list of the men recently elected to the directorate of the New Haven road with the list of the largest stockholders in the great Rockefeller trust that was recently made public in court.

It will be seen plainly that President Mellen began to get most energetic in consummating the plot to turn all New England over into the hands of a transportation monopoly about the time Standard Oil took hold of his road with a potent hand.

William Rockefeller, who holds 11,700 shares of Standard Oil, has been a director of the New Haven road for a long time, but the greatest of all trusts did not seek practical control of it until it had elected as directors three other of the thirty-one men who own more than one-half of Standard Oil.

The three new Standard Oil Company directors of the Mellen line are LEWIS CASS LEDYARD, CHARLES M. PRATT and FREDERICK F. BREWSTER.

Ledyard is associated in Standard Oil with Payne Whitney, and together they own 8,000 shares.

Payne Whitney is a nephew of Henry M. Whitney. Perhaps this throws more light on the interest which the candidate for Governor takes in having the Boston & Maine, in which he is a heavy stockholder, merged with the New Haven road.

If still more light is needed, there is the estate of his late brother, William C. Whitney, which is also among the thirty-one largest Standard Oil stockholders.

Pratt is secretary of the Standard Oil Company. He is also a director in the Boston & Maine, as well as in the New Haven line. The same is true of Ledyard, who, moreover, is a factor in the control of the American Express Company, a corporation very much interested in pushing the merger through.

Director Brewster of the New Haven road represents the Brewster millions, invested in Standard Oil.

The Boston Transcript, in announcing the advent of these Standard Oil men into the New Haven road, said on June 8 last:

> "In railroad circles here the additions to the New Haven directorate are interpreted positively as the first step in the coming merger of the New Haven corporation with the Boston & Maine."

The guiding rule of Standard Oil from first to last has been monopoly. All of its crimes, or most all of them, can be traced directly to its policy of CRUSHING COMPETITION and putting all mankind under tribute to it. It showed this disposition not only in oil, but in gas, copper and everything else.

Not only did Standard Oil MILLIONS take hold of the New Haven line, but Standard Oil METHODS were introduced at once. The Trust stretched this road out like a plundering paw to claw in the Boston & Maine and deprive the people of all chance of profiting by competitive traffic rates.

President Mellen was told to gobble up every line of rail in New England as soon as he could, which he started in to do with the aid of Republicans like Speaker John N. Cole and "Democrats" like Henry M. Whitney.

If Mellen is able to obey orders, the result will be a sad chapter in the history of this section. The Standard Oil has the boa constrictor habit of crushing first in order to devour at leisure.

Mr. Roosevelt Fighting Tom Johnson in Cleveland

We Rather Think Tom Johnson Will Win

Copyright, 1907, by American-Journal-Examiner

Mr. Roosevelt, elected by the people to do the work which devolves upon the President of the United States, believes evidently that he was chosen to be ALL the work of ALL the people, to make up their minds for them, on all possible questions, and, as far as possible, to do away with universal suffrage and the rule of the majority, by nominating candidates himself and kindly telling the people to go and vote for them.

Out in Cleveland, Mr. Tom L. Johnson has been elected Mayor three times in succession by large and increasing majorities. He has worked hard for the inhabitants of Cleveland along lines of municipal ownership and control of corporations, HE HAS ACTUALLY GIVEN RESULTS, AND THE PEOPLE THINK THAT THEY LIKE HIM, AND THAT THEY WANT HIM, AND MORE OF HIS THREE-CENT-FARE IDEAS.

Mr. Roosevelt thinks that the people are mistaken and don't know what they want. Therefore he has written a letter to Mr. Theodore E. Burton, telling Mr. Burton that it is his duty to run for Mayor and beat Tom Johnson.

Mr. Burton has published the letter from Mr. Roosevelt and is running accordingly.

The decision at the polls will be interesting, as it will show whether or not the people of Cleveland believe they require somebody at a distance to tell them what to do.

It is our opinion that Mr. Johnson will be elected, that Mr. Burton and Mr. Roosevelt will be surprised. The shortest kind of a platform on record that we know of has been written by Tom Johnson. It ought to be printed on the outside of his campaign tent. IT OUGHT TO BE USED IN EVERY CITY WHERE THE PEOPLE ARE TRYING TO RUN THINGS FOR THEMSELVES.

In his speech accepting the nomination and intimating that he intended to give Mr. Roosevelt something of a shock on election day, Mr. Johnson said:

> "Shall we have a monopoly owned city, or shall we have a city owned monopoly?"

That is the whole problem in the main questions of city government now. That short platform ought to be the platform of every man running for municipal office who really represents the voters.

The great sources of wealth are the monopolies. In a great majority of our cities, the monopolies, gas, street cars, etc., own the city. The monopolies WILL own the city until the day comes when the city shall own the monopolies.

The people have got to make up their minds to that.

Meanwhile, it is to be hoped that the people of Cleveland will give their votes to Mr. Johnson, who DOES things, who has actually reduced street car fares. It is better to elect a DOER than the indorsed candidate of a talker.

How a B. & A. Investigation Is Conducted

By M. B. Field

THE room is filled to its limit. Before long the august board of Railroad Commissioners arrive, and after brushing imaginary specks from their natty suits, they drop into the cushioned chairs wearily and the chairman whispers that the session is started.

An expert surgeon from the local hospital administers the ether and chloroform to the commissioners, but one of them, however, insists on taking laughing gas. He has investigated before.

A package of B. & A. time-tables is brought in from the railroad museum. The ribbons are untied and the folders are dusted. The high-browed commissioners are slowly coming out of their trance, very groggy, when one of their number suddenly catches sight of the folders.

"What are those things I see before me?" he shrieks.

The president of the road hastens to answer, but falters. "These, kind sir, are—um-um-um." Turning with a flushed face to his faithful clerk, "Bill, what are these infernal things, anyway?"

"These, sir, are time-tables, if you please."

"Take 'em away, you fool!" roars the commission in a body. "We have no time for time-tables," and this sally of near-wit convulsed the tribunal so that things began to be almost lively.

"Now for business," orders the chairman, with a queer look on his face. The colored attendant at the door thrusts his fist into his mouth and turns his face to the wall, shaking all over.

"Now, Mr. President, your road is the—"

"Boston & Albany, sir."

"It runs—"

The audience laughs rudely when they hear "runs."

"Out of Albany," the president replies, with a frozen glance toward the benches.

"Why do you have Boston in the name?"

"It is a convenient post office address."

"Thank you. Now one more question, as you see we are strangers. Does your road use horses or steam?"

"The horse is on the public, ha! ha! ha!" and this jest of the witty member of the board drowned the president's answer.

"Next witness," roars the secretary. An old and thrifty looking gentleman appears.

"Where do you live, sir?"

"On the B. & A."

"Don't be flippant. Your business?"

"I'm retired. I live with my family on the B. & A. We find it cheaper than to hire a flat. I'm satisfied with the road."

The road officials look at one another aghast.

"Stung!" whispers the president hoarsely to his assistant. "Rush back to the office and issue an order that passengers will be charged not by the mile, but by the month."

"Any more witnesses?" asks the secretary. The crestfallen spectators go out in single file. The desks are locked, the shades are pulled down, and the commission walks out whistling:

"I'll be with thee, Nellie,
When the B. & A. comes home."

Ella Wheeler Wilcox

She Protests Against the Lack of Originality Displayed in the Naming of Cities and Towns.

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

Copyright, 1907, by American Journal Examiner

AMERICA is supposed to be the centre of original thoughts and ideas, in a material way.

It started out, in the days of our Pilgrim fathers and mothers, to build up a republic on progressive lines and to get away from old traditions. In some respects it succeeded; in others it has made a lamentable failure.

In the matter of names for its towns it has shown a paucity of originality and a limitation of imagination that is not only painful, but most annoying to its citizens, and at times disastrous to their best interests.

There are in the United States thirty-nine towns named Washington, thirty-five Lincoln, twenty-five Warren, twenty-three Jamestown, twenty-seven Middletown, thirty Madison, twenty-four Troy, nineteen Waterloo, eleven Watertown, twenty Hartford, ten Warsaw, eight Washburn.

And one might find fifty other towns duplicated over and over again by looking through a postoffice directory. There seems to be little reason or sentiment associated with any of these names, save the first two.

All in a Name

YET even in this case it would have been more complimentary and original to have called all the lesser Washingtons by some word suggestive of Washington's deeds. "First Father" would be an unusual name for a city and would give it some character of its own. "Great-man" would be another. "Rebellion" a third. For a memorial to Lincoln, "Whole-host," "Mighty-man," "Shackle-breaker," would supply three towns with better names than mere repetitions.

Then our country should have made it a duty to keep the native Indian words to a great degree.

The Indian dialect is full of picturesque words which certainly lend more individuality to a location than a dozen "Janesvilles" and "Jonesvilles."

There is nothing of interest in the words Watertown, Westville, Westfield, Washburn or Middletown, especially when a score or more places bear the same ugly cognomen.

Every town should copyright its name.

Then it would suggest no other place, and lost mail and express packages would cease to wander over the whole continent seeking for owners.

The mind of man would be forced to invent new names, and for his chosen place of residence.

There is a vast deal in a name.

The town, more than the individual, suffers from a universal cognomen. "John Smith" suffers only a hundred years at longest, but "Johnstown" suffers for a thousand years from having no character in its title.

The utter commonplaceness of the names bestowed upon unusual and beautiful seashore resorts is suggestive of god-fathers, who were devoid of a sense of fitness and who were without imagination.

Some Examples

ON the Sound, an artistic and lovely place may be found known as "Stony Creek." There is a large expanse of salt water and a group of incomparable islands known as "The Thimbles" at this resort. If there is a "creek," or if it is "stony," no one cares.

The place should have been christened "Thimble Islands," and thus allowed to present the idea of its unusual charm to every one who hears it spoken.

Another resort, more exquisitely beautiful than any spot to be found between New York and New London, is known as "Short Beach." Magnificent pink granite rocks surround a beautiful bay, where splendid trees grow, to the water's edge. "Granite Bay" or "Boulder Bay" would be appropriate names for this Summer paradise.

As it is, a large percentage of letters, express packages and visitors seek this spot to go to "South Beach," "Long Beach," "South Beach," and a half-hundred better known "Beach" named places, before they find the Eden sheltered by rocks and trees.

Our country is growing, and new towns are springing up all about us. Let every one with influence use it, so far as possible, in choosing new, interesting and distinctive names for new places.
